Macmillan Pact Move Favored by Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated again today he strongly favors reopening of East-West negotiations.

Talking with reporters after a two and one-half-hour cabinet meeting, the prime minister said British Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for an East-West non-aggression pact represents a "forward-looking view."

Mr. Macmillan, he added, has shown repeatedly a desire to bring about an alleviation of world tensions.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that on the basis of past experience a non-aggression pact might not achieve everything intended but it would bring the major Western nations together in consultation with Russia. This in itself would be of "material advantage."

The prime minister said uncertainties and difficulties among individuals can be dissipated by discussion. The same could apply to nations.

Solutions would never be reached unless there was discussion.

Mr. Diefenbaker at the same time disclosed that he received a new year's greeting Dec. 31 from President Voroshilov, Communist party secretary Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin of Russia.

He did not receive it immediately because he was holidaying in the Bahamas. However, he planned to reply to the greeting later today.

In London, the foreign office said today that Prime Minister Macmillan's suggested non-aggression pact with Russia was not intended as an isolated offer but as a "complement" to wider international agreements.

This statement was offered as an interpretation rather than as a correction of the prime minister's suggestion in a broadcast Saturday that Britain would be ready to seek a non-aggression pact with the Soviet Union in the interest of easing international tensions.

World reaction to Macmillan's suggestion for an East-West non-aggression pact remained cautious.

Several western countries voiced general support but did not commit themselves strongly to the suggestion. Others, notably the United States, were cool.

The U.S. issued an official "no comment" statement. Two years ago, however, Russia suggested to the U.S. a similar pact and the U.S. rejected it.

India's Prime Minister Nehru, who has been seeking such a move for a long time, greeted it with approval.

At Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said he had received a good impression of Macmillan's idea. But a later report said the West German government has decided to go more slowly in view of the lack of U.S. support.

French officials said there would be no official comment until the suggestion has been discussed in the NATO permanent council.

Russ Challenge West to Follow Cut in Forces

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced tonight a 300,000-man reduction in its armed forces in 1958 and challenged the Western powers to do likewise.

At the same time, Deputy Foreign Minister V. V. Kuznetsov told a press conference the Kremlin is considering "positively" Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for a non-aggression pact between East and West.

Kuznetsov said the reduction in Soviet military manpower will begin immediately and be completed this year.

The reduction, he added, is being made in compliance with the directives of the last Supreme Soviet parliament and the 300,000-man cut will include the army, navy and air force.

of a missile-firing atomic submarine.

And, Rickover said, he is "very much worried that it is almost too late to match the achievements of the Soviet Union" in the general missile field. Russia is reported to have missile-firing subs.

Rickover, who guided the development of atomic undersea craft, said he had not proposed originally that nuclear submarines be equipped to fire ballistic missiles.

But two years ago, he said, he became convinced that such a project would be feasible and recommended it be started.

Previously, Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Wash.), a member of the Senate armed services committee, told reporters the United States hasn't got any missile-firing submarines under construction now.

Fuchs Rejects Hillary Plea To Abandon Trip

LONDON (Reuters)—British explorer Vivian Fuchs today curtly rejected a suggestion from Sir Edmund Hillary that he give up his struggle to reach the South Pole now.

Dr. Fuchs, attempting the first successful land crossing of the Antarctic continent, also turned down an offer by Hillary to join the Fuchs party at a point 700 miles from the coast.

Hillary suggested Fuchs abandon attempts to complete the crossing now because he feels deteriorating weather will make the expedition risky. But Fuchs said his party will take its chances and "we will find our own way out."

Marshal of the RAF Sir John Slessor, chairman of the enterprise, has cabled Dr. Fuchs telling him: "We have full confidence in you and your judgment as leader of the expedition."

The original plan for the expedition—worked out more than a year ago—was for Dr. Fuchs and his party of explorer-scientists to make the first complete land crossing of the white continent.

ESTABLISH DEPOT

Hillary, setting off from the other side, was to establish Depot 700—700 miles from the coast—and wait there until Fuchs reached him.

Instead, Hillary made a dash to the South Pole from Depot 700 and now has flown back to his original coastal starting point, leaving his vehicles behind.

He disclosed today that because of worsening weather he urged Fuchs—who is still more than 300 miles from the South Pole—to abandon the crossing once he reached the pole and resume it in the next summer season, toward the end of this year.

The message from Fuchs received at expedition headquarters here today read:

"Have received message from Hillary urging me to abandon journey at pole and return here next season to continue work. His grounds are deterioration of weather late in season. I am aware of this possibility which must be accepted."

DOES NOT AGREE

"Have informed him that there is no question of abandonment and return of party following season impracticable."

MANNED RUSS ROCKET LAUNCHING CLAIMED

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has launched an experimental rocket 186.42 miles into the atmosphere with a human aboard, reliable sources here said tonight. The man aboard the rocket parachuted successfully to earth, these sources said. There was no official Soviet announcement.

The successful experiment is reported to have taken place within a day or so after the New Year, the reports said.

Billions Needed To Up Lagging U.S. Defences

WASHINGTON (AP)—A civilian study group says American strategy and military forces are out of step with the tempo of the missile age and need big changes and billions more in money.

United States defence spending should be increased about $3,000,000,000 each year for the next several years, says a special 21-man panel of the Rockefeller Bros. Fund.

SERVE AS ADVISERS

The panel says the JCS chairman "should be in a position to shape strategic planning," with the other members merely advising him, and adds that the secretary of defence now is compelled to devote much of his time to acting as a referee in service disputes.

Summing up findings in a study which began in 1956, the panel concludes among other things that:

1. Strategy "lags behind developments in technology" and the U.S. "is rapidly losing its lead in the race of military technology." The lag in missiles and space machines "reflects our national complacency."

2. Strategy, as evolved by the joint chiefs of staff, is "a patchwork of compromise" among the rival armed forces. The joint chiefs of staff "functions too often as a committee of partisan advisers engaged in advancing service strategic plans and compromising service differences."

No longer would the chiefs of staff of the services direct military operations of their services. The departments of the army, navy and air force would become agencies for recruiting and training men and procuring and distributing equipment and supplies.

Even more startling to the observers of military tradition is the group's proposal that all officers above brigadier rank cease to be identified with an individual service, becoming officers "of the armed forces of the United States."

The Rockefeller study group says that perhaps the most difficult thing for the American people to accept is "the reality of our peril."

Foreign Ministers Seek End to Deadlock

PARIS (Reuters)—Foreign ministers of six European countries met today, hoping to surmount national rivalries and break a deadlock over location of a capital for their international community.

The index for average wages and salaries at Oct. 1—the latest figure available—was 160.3, on the basis of 1949 equalling 100. This compares with 148 at Jan. 1, 1957, and with the following average figures for the preceding years: 1956, 149.4; 1955, 141.7; 1954, 137.1; 1953, 133.4; 1952, 126.0; 1951, 115.5; 1950, 104.4; 1949, 100.

The index figure of 123.1 at the start of December represents an increase of 2.7 points compared with the same period in 1956. The decrease in the index between the start of October and the start of December amounted to 2.4 per cent.

Two Others Hurt In Oak Bay Mishap

One man was electrocuted at 9.30 a.m. today and two suffered burns when the cable of a mobile crane working on a construction job in Oak Bay touched a 12,000-volt high tension cable.

Victim was Sigvard Gustafson, 51, of 1221 Johnson Street, who was guiding the sling of the crane toward a pile of lumber when the fatal contact was made.

Helping him were John Martinakis, 339 Simcoe, who was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital for treatment, and Kristian Naess, 3809 Carey Road, who was treated at the hospital and sent home.

The accident occurred at 1270 Beach Drive, where A. K. Smalley, 2706 Dorset, a contractor, is building a two-storey apartment. According to reports, the men were using the mobile crane to lift lumber from the street to the top floor of the apartment.

Owned by Victoria Van and Storage Ltd., and operated by Thomas W. Cox, 3590 Saanich Road, it was parked sideways between the curb and the building. Cox escaped injury.

Police said the building is on a curve, and that poles carrying the power line are at each end of the property. As a result, the power line cuts across the curve formed by the curb.

Const. Harold Bird and Const. Charles Bates of Oak Bay police attended the accident, and took Gustafson to Royal Jubilee Hospital in the police ambulance. He was dead on arrival at the hospital. Decision on an inquest will be announced by the Oak Bay police.

The victim, a native of Sweden and resident of Canada since 1929, had lived in Victoria for the past 15 years. He was a member of Swedish and Norwegian social clubs here, and was active in the Boy Scout movement.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and of the Carpenters and Joiners Brotherhood, and gave freely of his time on charity and public service projects undertaken by the union.

Surviving are the widow, Ruth; five sons, all under 15 years, and a daughter only two months old.

Details of the accident are still under RCMP investigation. Mrs. Ridley apparently was travelling toward Victoria on the highway when her car was in collision with the pedestrian. It is understood he was on his way to mail a letter.

Mr. Hopkins, a former CNR repairman, came to Canada from Wales in 1913. He lived in Winnipeg prior to moving to Victoria in 1946.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Winnifred Macintosh, Victoria; one son, Leonard, New Westminster, and a sister in England.

Aged Man First '58 Fatality

Greater Victoria's first traffic fatality of 1958 occurred in View Royal Sunday night.

William Hopkins, 76, of 283 Helmcken, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 11.30 p.m., two hours after he was in collision with a light truck at the corner of Helmcken and the Old Island Highway. Colwood RCMP said driver of the truck was Mrs. Joan Edith Ridley, 3260 Metcho-sin.

Details of the accident are still under RCMP investigation. Mrs. Ridley apparently was travelling toward Victoria on the highway when her car was in collision with the pedestrian. It is understood he was on his way to mail a letter.

APOLOGIZES TO FULTON

Hanna Receives Fine In Intoxication Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Christian George Hanna, Canada's most publicized immigrant in recent years, made another public appearance today when he appeared in court on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place early Sunday.

Hanna, 24, pleaded guilty to the charge, which resulted from a noisy party here, and was fined $10 or five days imprisonment.

An unidentified woman paid his fine.

Hanna was arrested on a similar charge here last summer but skipped his bail.

The one-time stowaway was dubbed "the man without a country" because he said he was born at sea, had no citizenship papers and wandered from port to port aboard a Norwegian vessel Ss. Gudveig for 15 months before finding a haven in Canada.

While awaiting hearing of his charge Sunday, Hanna wrote a letter to Acting Immigration Minister Davie Fulton apologizing for his failure to succeed in Canada.

1,800 Flee Texas Storm, Rains Boost Flood Threat

DALLAS (AP)—A surge of destructive weather sent up to 1,800 persons fleeing their flooded homes in south Texas and stranded as many as 500 motorists in snow in west and northwest Texas Sunday night and today. Rains were still falling today posing new threats to flooded areas.

Worst hit from floods were the lower Rio Grande valley at the southern tip of Texas and areas around Corpus Christie, about 130 miles up the Gulf of Mexico coast.

The snows which stranded motorists fell from the Marfa area in Texas' Big Bend north for 300 miles or so into the Plainview area in the south plains, and on into New Mexico.

The turbulent weather sent waves crashing into Padre Island, a long, low island that runs for 120 miles along the Texas coast. Eight persons were stranded overnight on the island. Navy helicopters evacuated them from Padre today.

At mid-morning, water was not receding perceptibly in the lower Rio Grande valley city of Edinburg, which was worst hit by the high water.

Five hundred persons were taken from their flooded homes at Bishop and 500 at Robstown, in the Corpus Christi area Sunday.

The water spread over 71 blocks in Edinburg, mostly in residential sections of small, wooden houses built close to the ground. Water there was more than knee deep.

Defence Budget Okayed After More Criticism

(From Times News Services)

Canada's $1,723,000,000 defence budget for the current fiscal year ending next March 31 has been approved by the Commons.

However, approval came Saturday only after another round of criticism directed against what Lester B. Pearson described as "a very shaky basis" for the establishment of NORAD.

NORAD is the joint North American Air Defence Command, set up at Colorado Springs, Colo., six months ago with an American commander and a Canadian deputy.

Mr. Pearson, former Liberal external affairs minister, criticized the fact that this command, unlike other commands within NATO, was established without a prior formal agreement being negotiated between Canada and the United States.

The formal agreement, necessary to maintain civilian government authority over the military, was needed to set out NORAD's operational principles and its relationship with the Canadian and U.S. governments.

He said the oral agreements between Canada and the U.S. for the establishment of NORAD were "a very shaky basis" on which an American commander could order Canadian planes in Canada into action.

Exchange of Draft Agreements

Defence Minister Pearson replied that he too believes the civilian authority must be maintained over the military. There had been an exchange of draft agreements, based on oral agreements, and as soon as they had been approved by the two governments, Canada would submit the formal text for parliamentary approval.

He said that, in effect, political authority is established by the fact that the chiefs of staff of both countries must account to government ministers.

Mr. Pearson said NORAD makes possible a defence of North America that would not have been possible otherwise. There would be no time to call Parliament for approval to send up defenders when enemy planes were over Canadian territory.

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, said no one quarrels with the need for joint defence of Canada and the U.S.

But it was only proper that it be established on the basis of political agreement. Civilian authority over the military must be maintained.

During the defence debate, Mr. Pearson made these other points:

1. The militia's new civil defence role does not mean it will take over civil defence from provincial and municipal authorities, but would better prepare it as "an aid to the civil power."

2. The RCAF is considering the advisability of replacing its old Canso aircraft for search and rescue operations, but no decision has been reached.

3. The $1,100,000 available for defence research grants in universities this year will not be reduced next fiscal year.

The federal government spent $89,640,000 up to Oct. 31 on development of the CF-105 supersonic jet interceptor and is committed to support its development only until next Oct. 1, Defence Minister Pearson said Saturday.

He said the total cost of the project, undertaken by Avro Aircraft Ltd., will depend on "the number of aircraft, if any, which are ordered."

Replying to CCF questions, Mr. Pearson said the delta winged interceptor is designed to meet high-altitude manned bombers. Russia had a considerable number of such bombers, and while that condition existed it was necessary to have aircraft capable of meeting them.

Gen. Gavin Spurs Pentagon Shakeup

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spectacular one-man revolt by Lieut.-Gen. James M. Gavin has spurred demands for a shakeup in the United States military high command.

Gavin, chief of the army's research and development program, told a reporter he is sticking by his announced intention to retire from the army March 31.

"I won't compromise my principle and I won't go along with the Pentagon system," Gavin said.

Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.) said Gavin's stand emphasizes a need for Congress to consider overhauling the present military setup.

Gavin said Saturday night that "I haven't been able to get much done, the system being what it is." Without elaborating on this, he said he is "not doing any good" inside the army "so I'll take a cut at it on the outside."

Several subcommittee members asked that the group look into reports that Gavin was threatened with transfer to some obscure post unless he changed some of his views on the missiles program.

... HILLARY

"He does not wish to accompany us from pole but offers to join us at Depot 700. He states his agreement with his mechanic's view that continuation of journey late in the season is unjustifiable risk."

"I do not agree but have informed him that I do not feel able to ask him to join us at Depot 700 to use his local knowledge. Fuchs."

Senators' message to Fuchs, sent on behalf of the London committee of management of the expedition, read: "Committee have considered your telegram and Hillary's. We have full confidence in you and your judgment as leader of the expedition."

"We support your decision and any other you may make."

"Best wishes and congratulations of present progress."

The extent of the disagreement between the two explorers is shown by the text of Hillary's telegram to London headquarters suggesting that Fuchs abandon his attempt.

SAVE FACE

He told the London organizers: "Your instructions are the only thing that can enable Fuchs to save face and adopt a modified plan."

The telegram said Fuchs had asked that one of Hillary's mechanics stay at the south pole to accompany him to Scott Base—the New Zealand headquarters on the Antarctic coast.

It added: "Neither of my men, who have done an outstanding job, is prepared to take on this job which they regard as extremely foolhardy at this time of the year."

He said: "Fuchs does not realize that his delayed progress is causing considerable concern not only to ourselves but also to the Americans."

"They accept the fact it will be their job, whether they are asked or not, to initiate rescue action and that therefore both naval and air forces will be tied up here awaiting Fuchs' safe arrival."

3 Juveniles Held in Ottawa Rash of Fires

OTTAWA (CP)—Two brothers and their sister—all juveniles—today were charged by police with setting 10 fires in east-central Ottawa during a 20-hour period Sunday and a school fire Dec. 22.

The children, ranging in age between nine and 12, were arrested today following an intensive police and fire department investigation of the series of fires.

Police began a search for school-age children when partly-burned schoolbooks and paper were found under the verandah of an apartment house where fire was discovered Sunday.

The three will be held in custody until their court appearance.

Heaviest damage was suffered at Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church on Laurier Avenue East at Cumberland Street. Two fires were found 40 feet apart near entrances to the church basement. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Tories Still Study House Recess During Liberal Leadership Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today no arrangement has been made yet for recessing the Commons for all or part of the Jan. 14-16 sessions of the national Liberal leadership convention here.

Earlier, a spokesman at Liberal headquarters had said the Commons would stand adjourned Wednesday night, Jan. 15, and all day Thursday, Jan. 16—leadership balloting day.

Works Minister Howard Green, government floor leader in the Commons, also denied there has been any arrangement made.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Commons will be notified when consideration has been given to the question.

One high-placed government informant said it might seem reasonable that the House take Wednesday night and Thursday afternoon off.

Senate plans were not known. Senator J. T. Haig, government leader, was not in the capital.

All Liberal members of both Houses are voting delegates at the convention.

Moon, Sun Battle Produces Spectacle

A schizophrenic sky Saturday was the setting for a 15-minute battle between moon and sun over Victoria.

Starting at 4:30 p.m. Victorians who were out and about saw a silvery full moon rise over Mount Baker as the sun sank below the Sooke hills in a brilliant multi-hued departure.

Golfers, playing the links at Oak Bay, had one of the best ringside seats for the double spectacle as they finished their games by simultaneous moonlight and sunlight.

The explanation?

"It was nothing unusual," said Dr. R. M. Petrie of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. "The full moon during December and January is very high in the sky so that it rises before the sun sets."

"It follows, in winter, the same path north of the equator that the sun takes in July."

The next performance should be staged here towards the end of this month when the moon goes into its full phase again.

As for the brilliant sunset, weatherman Bill Mackie credited high-floating cirrus clouds that were present in the west.

U.S. Readies Big Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—A brawny Atlas intercontinental missile, mightiest so far prepared by the United States in reply to Russian rocket threats, was poised again today for firing some time this week.

Harsh winds lashing the cape and its great steel missile towers were expected to continue at least another day, however, and could delay the first test launchings of the new year.

Best guess for triggering of the blunt-nosed 90-foot Atlas was Wednesday, the day after Congress reconvenes to consider the staggering sums needed for bolstering the nation's defenses—in particular the guided missile development program.

Protection
...at your fingertips
Safety in the automobile is optional at no extra cost. No mechanical safety device can replace the protection of careful driving.
Last year, traffic accidents claimed the lives of more Canadians than ever before. Someone was injured every 8 minutes. A car was damaged every 48 seconds. Automobile insurance claims rose to more than $150,000,000.
One result of this is higher automobile insurance rates—because what is paid out in claims must be brought in by premiums. But even more important is the fact that you hold your life, and the lives of others, in your hands when you get behind the wheel of a car.
Safety pays dividends... saves lives, helps to lower your insurance costs. Be Careful.

Smith Doubts Soviet Attempt
At 'Elimination of Mankind'

CALGARY (CP)—Canada's external affairs minister says the Russians do not want a nuclear war "any more than we do" and Soviet peace proposals should be considered seriously.

Sidney Smith said Saturday night in an address to the Alberta Progressive Conservative Association that the free world should find out if Russia is serious in its propositions.

"I cannot believe the Russians want a nuclear war any more than we do," Mr. Smith said. "Such a war could mean the elimination of mankind."

It has been the practice in some world capitals to have some unidentified official dismiss any note from Russia as propaganda. Western countries should take time out to examine at least the feasibility of each offer.

WORK THROUGH NATO

Canada supported the building of NATO defences but at the same time intended to urge NATO countries to find out "if there is some way, some place, somehow we can sit down with the U.S.S.R. and see if they are not willing to discuss some reasonable proposal."

NATO had been formed merely as a defence pact and Russian claims that NATO is an aggressor pact were not true.

Russia's nuclear strength made it imperative the West must always be ready "to lead from strength," but Western countries should be ready at the same time to discuss any proposal with Russia or take the initiative in making proposals.

History had shown that arming for peace eventually breaks down.

"It is not appeasement or leading from weakness to say that no sane person should shut the door on the possibility of sitting down and discussing serious proposals."

"May God help us to develop an alternative to further our own eradication of fear and promote understanding and trust."

LITTLE HOPE OF RECOVERING SPUTNIK BITS

MOSCOW (UP)—A top Soviet scientist, Professor Stanislavovich, said today that Russia has little hope of recovering fragments from its dying Sputnik I, the first earthly traveller in space.

Somewhere just outside the earth's atmosphere, the pioneer earth satellite was spinning out its last hours if it has not already disintegrated.

Premier Nikolai Bulganin told newsmen Friday night that he expected the first Sputnik, launched Oct. 4, to fall today or Tuesday.

Canada could not find a "better and more generous neighbor," than the United States.

14 Survive Crash

EDMONTON (CP)—Fourteen members of the RCAF escaped serious injury today when a C-119 Flying Boxcar crashed short of the runway at the Namao air base, nine miles north of Edmonton.

An air force official said one motor on the giant twin-engine plane failed shortly after takeoff.

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—

The United States Navy confirmed today that the giant British flying boat, the Princess, built by Saunders Roe, is among the machines being considered as suitable for the first nuclear-powered aircraft.

The 10-engine Princess is in reserve at present.

Asked to comment on reports that the navy has proposed that a flying boat become the first U.S. nuclear aircraft, a navy spokesman said: "The navy has plans for a nuclear-powered turbo-prop seaplane and has offered its estimates of what acceleration to this program would be feasible if it became desirable to initiate an accelerated nuclear-powered flight program."

"Among other aircraft the British Princess is being considered."

Mr. Burt's Bogey

MR. GEORGE BURT, CANADIAN director of the United Auto Workers, says in a widely-printed article that the national economy urgently needs higher wages and shorter working hours. Only by this means, he explains, will the public receive enough money to buy the available goods and keep business prosperous.

The notion that higher wages without higher productivity will produce higher prices is just a bogey, according to Mr. Burt. Prices, he says, "are out of the reach of our earning power" and therefore the obvious solution is to increase earning power.

In announcing Canadian labor's plans to secure more pay with less work this year Mr. Burt overlooks two facts or prefers not to recognize them.

The first is that our wage-cost-price structure cannot be considered in isolation. Less than any of the Western nations does Canada live unto herself. It earns almost a quarter of its income by selling its goods to other nations. And they—the world market—fix the price.

If we cannot meet that price we cannot sell our goods. If we fail to sell our goods our great export industries must decline, as some of them have declined, mainly for that reason, already.

Does Mr. Burt suppose that only the owners of industry suffer when exports decline? If he has been in British Columbia lately he must know that the first victims of this process are the workers, who lose their jobs. They may have a higher wage scale and smaller working hours but they have no wages and no work.

This law is not the invention of the owners; it is the inexorable law of trade far beyond the control of Canada or any other nation.

It affects so much of our economy that any serious reduction in exports is sufficient, in Canada, to produce a major depression and widespread unemployment. This will certainly occur if wages and costs are raised beyond the level that our foreign customers will pay. And they don't have to buy from us, in most cases, but can buy elsewhere where prices are lower.

Even if Canada had no foreign trade and lived in complete isolation from the world there is a second, purely Canadian fact overlooked by Mr. Burt.

He is right in saying that organized labor, if it is strong enough to secure large increases in wages and reductions in hours, can secure a larger share of the nation's goods, provided it is still employed. But organized labor is still a minority of Canadian labor. Much of our labor is unorganized and cannot push up its wages, not quickly anyway. In addition, the income of millions of Canadians is absolutely fixed—the aged, the pensioners, the people living on the shrunken savings of past work.

All these people have been gravely damaged by a large rise in prices and the devaluation of savings. They will be damaged further if prices continue to rise, as they certainly must rise when wage increases exceed productivity—that is, when labor is paid more for producing the same amount of goods, or less.

Even that is not the end of the cycle. Just as we can price ourselves out of foreign markets we can price ourselves out of Canadian markets. If prices in Canada increase too much consumers will resist them. Then sales must fall, less goods will be produced, business will decline and unemployment will rise.

This kind of inflation, still under way in Canada, is not mainly the enemy of the rich man, who can usually look after himself. It is the enemy mainly of the working man and, most of all, of the poor man and the unorganized man. From it no one benefits but the speculator.

Mr. Burt thus does a grave disservice to the working people when he tries to tell us that the danger of inflation is a bogey. Any housewife can see that fallacy written on her household accounts.

Example in Bavaria

IN BAVARIA, STATE FORESTERS are moving to protect the chamois.

Its numbers are being depleted by hunters who have made of the alpine game animal a highly prized trophy. Reserves are now being created in the German Alps to shelter the species. In time, it is hoped, the chamois population will again be built up.

The situation in that section of the Alps bears no great similarity to that prevailing on Vancouver Island hills, where Canadians hunt deer. But there are one or two points in the regulations laid down for chamois hunters which might be noted here.

High fees, not desirable in this country, are charged for those who take to the snowfields for chamois. But the right to hunt is not based solely on the individual's ability to pay the charges.

Before the sportsman is allowed to start his quest for a head, he must undergo and pass a "hunter's examination."

Reports from Bavaria describe the infinite hazards of stalking the animal in the high snows.

The hazards of hunting on Vancouver Island are somewhat different. It is true a man may encounter dangers when alone in the woods here. But the chief risk seems to be that of being shot by another hunter.

Perhaps the time has arrived here to follow at least one of the Bavarian practices. That is to require men to pass examinations before they are allowed to hunt.

The Missing Intangibles

A BRITISH GEOLOGIST WHO came to Canada recently and settled in Regina has written a letter to the Manchester Guardian setting out what he likes about this country and what he misses in it.

He is pleased with material success in Canada. He is still looking for those intangibles with which he was familiar in Britain.

Among the intangibles are some British newspapers, radio programs, concerts and the theatre. He finds here a relative lack "of the introspective individual."

It just happens, says the immigrant, that the things he misses are not, for the time being, attributes of a vital, booming, pioneering country like Canada.

It might be argued that the newcomer could find elsewhere in this country some of the intangibles not apparent to him in Regina. It could also be stated that the influences dear to him, like the English countryside which he also misses, can appear only in a form modified from the domestic British version he knew. But his comments, apparently spoken in kindness, will do Canadians no good if they are met by resentment and defence.

The British immigrant has pointed to certain elements in Canadian life—or to the absence of them—which go to make a mature country. We will profit as we heed his remarks and remember that material well-being, with which this country seems so predominantly impressed, is not the only thing, or possibly even the most important, in determining a nation's character.

A measure of our maturity will be reflected in a closer interest in those intangibles which the geologist has failed yet to find here.

Reply to Production Protests

WHILE THE ECONOMIC implications of farm surpluses continue to plague governments on this continent, the United States Agricultural Research Service has presented a warning for our productive lands to heed.

The warning comes in a reply to interests suggesting that natural scientists should take a vacation from efforts to show farmers how to grow more.

"Twenty years from now," it says, "we will not think that we were doing too much production research in 1957. In looking back over our past, we will be amazed that we were satisfied with a production research effort whose emphasis was so heavily geared to holding the line. We will ask ourselves why we were so sure in 1957 that we could cope with farmers' problems (of meeting demands) of 1977."

This is the service's comment after its experts have taken into account growing population and eventual broader uses by industry for products of the farm.

It may offer little in the way of a solution to market problems, but it does show an appreciation for the fact that this is a hungry world and can expect to remain hungry for a long time to come.

Little Christmas

GOOD OR BAD?

By B. A. TOBIN

All in Your Mind

THE question of moral censorship continues to plague governments as well as the people whose reading matter is censored by government officials. When is a picture immoral and when is it a work of art? When is a book obscene and when is it merely a reproduction of life? This is the sort of question the state must ask itself. And the public, on its part, is frequently moved to ask such questions as: When is a censor a critic and when is he just an ignorant prude? At what point does the public good become secondary to some individual's personal taste? Why do they bother with it anyway?

In Canada the whole problem has always been vexatious, and it has never yet been solved. The average Canadian's concept of official censorship is an overworked police constable in a blue uniform trying to correlate his own ideas of morality with the very vague legal definition he has to go on.

Hard to Define

Canadian censorship may not be on quite this plane, of course, but the feelings of the censored often make it appear so. To come up with a proper finding under such circumstances—even to prove that a finding should be come up with at all—is a pretty difficult task.

A recent news item indicates that the U.S. federal government has added still another unknown to the censorship equation. Heretofore it has been held that a book or picture was obscene on its own merits—or perhaps lack of them is the proper phrase. It did not matter who might view the objects. The evil was in the material, not in the eye of the beholder.

But now that concept has been changed. As a result of an application by the Kinsey Institute, which wished to import some pictures and books ordinarily classed as obscene, the government has accepted a new legal standard. Under this definition, the material is not considered obscene if it is unlikely to arouse the "prurient interest" of those who will see it. In other words, a dirty joke isn't a dirty joke if you don't laugh.

Wider Field

That, it seems to me, opens a whole new approach to censorship as well as to other legal concepts. It seems to hold that a thing is only obscene if you are going to take an obscene interest in it. Will taking a "prurient interest" in any type of object now render it obscene?

The government decision seems to have a certain amount of good sense in it, but it raises unusual difficulties in enforcement.

Presumably the personnel of the Kinsey institute will view the imported material with a coldly scientific eye, feeling no slightest quirk of prurient interest. But once the material is in the country, how can the institute guarantee that all who view it will have the same detached attitude?

Will it have to be kept under lock and key, or in government bond? Will the institute become liable to penalty if someone someday admits to a less than scientific curiosity in the pictures?

Penny for Your . . .

The whole thing seems to lead inevitably into some system of government thought control or mental analysis. If the beholder's thoughts are the criteria of obscenity, then obviously the beholder's thoughts must be continuously made known to the government department which permits him to look.

It seems as though the lawyers should have a field day with this one.

And consider the application of the principle to other crimes. A murder committed in anger would be a murder. But what of a murder in which the killer claimed to have had most unmerciful thoughts—indeed to have been filled with love and affection at the time of the crime? What of a thief who was thinking only generous and charitable thoughts as he stole? Would this new principle not absolve him of criminal guilt?

Court Decision

I can imagine some future case, say of the United States versus Joe Doakes. Joe is on the stand.

Prosecutor: Mr. Doakes, it has been shown to this court that you were observed reading Boccaccio's Decameron with a pronounced leer on your face. Pray tell us what were your thoughts at that precise moment?

Doakes: I was thinking of the beautiful description of the countryside that I was reading.

Prosecutor: Then how do you explain your facial expression?

Doakes: That was no leer. I had had a piece of boiled halibut for lunch and was suffering a slight attack of indigestion.

Judge: The state has failed to prove its point. Case dismissed.

Exit Doakes, leaving slightly.

Such cases no doubt will become common. But they may not always go so easily in favor of the accused. Many a man, idly contemplating a piece of statuary in the park, will have to exercise a strict control of his features, masking his thoughts and assuming a coldly scientific appearance, lest he, or the statue, be removed by force from public view.

Old Christmas Cards

Many people are wondering now that Christmas is over, what to do with their Christmas cards. If they will send them to the following address, they will be much appreciated, and acknowledged: Limbless Ex-Servicemen's Enterprises, (Christmas Card Dept.) Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. 'D.S.A.'

Star of Bethlehem

Now when the Christmas season is again in the past so far as seasons go, it may not be inopportune to reflect on some of the thoughts, teachings and expressed beliefs given off by different authorities and schools of thought.

One of these in this scientific and practical age is the theory of the wise men who followed the star or planet or nova which as recorded in Matt. chap. 2, verse 9 they had seen in "the East" stood over the house or stable for which they were looking.

In our day and due to expanding scientific knowledge it is known that stars are so distant and so large that not even a continent or ocean, not to speak of a country, a state, a city and least of all a city block or house could ever be pointed out by one of these immense bodies.

Ample proof of this may be had by simply sticking a dozen or so tacks in a piece of wood or cardboard spaced about an inch apart in about the same disorder without streets or lines as was Bethlehem 2000 years ago, and then hold an orange about a foot or so above the tacks and try to find the one singled out by the orange. A simple test such as that applied to many of the old-time superstitions would help greatly in getting thought and teaching on sound and truthful tracks.

More About Fluoridation

General Paralysis

The following facts were published in the Dispensary of U.S.A. 24th Edition, page 1456, before the campaign to add fluorides to the domestic water began: "Fluorides are violent poisons to all living tissue because of their precipitation of calcium. They cause fall of blood pressure, respiratory failure and general paralysis. Continuous ingestion of non-fatal doses causes permanent inhibition of growth."

The Department of Agriculture Yearbook U.S.A. 1939 states: "It is especially important that fluorine be avoided from birth to the age of 12 years."

Calgary, Alta., recently voted against it. Parents arouse yourselves before it is too late. Beautiful teeth will be mottled.

Leaky Pipes

A great many testimonials of plumbing trouble due to fluoridated water have appeared in the American press, of which the following is an excerpt by H. Carpenter, Maintenance Engineer, Gearhart Hotel, Gearhart, Oregon, March 4, 1937:

"The hotel had had the average maintenance of water pipe and plumbing prior to the addition of fluorides to the water supply. In 1933 a great deal of trouble developed, among them leaks due to heavy rust and corrosion of water pipes. Many sieve-like holes caused spontaneous leaks . . ."

Running Out

Looks like the anti-fluoridationists are getting panicky. Their claims are getting wilder.

First, they tried to frighten people by saying fluorides are poison; if it doesn't kill you it'll paralyze you! But with over 30 million North Americans drinking fluoridated water for years (some for generations)—not paralyzed, not dead—the point was rather difficult to explain away.

Then they tried the pseudo-scientific approach—quoting questionable if not at times wholly fictional "authorities" opposing fluoridation. But with every

How Long?

Although the entire citizens of Kelowna have innocently and unwittingly voted themselves into an illegal whole-sale health experiment, it is interesting to discover (with very little trouble) that well over twenty other areas in Canada, including large towns like Toronto, London, Windsor, Hamilton, St. Catherine's, Kitchener, Port Arthur and Montreal to mention a few, received enough light on the "other side" of the fluoridation project to reject it.

As of January 1937, eighty-five communities had discarded fluoridation after disastrous trial, usually within two or three years. How long before Kelowna is added to that list?

World Endorsement

From American Dental Association Newsletter

"The effectiveness, safety and practicality of fluoridation as a means of preventing dental caries, one of the most prevalent and widespread diseases in the world is now established," the Expert Committee on Water Fluoridation of the World Health Organization reported last month. The committee met in Geneva Aug. 26-30.

A study of hundreds of controlled fluoridation programs in 17 countries provided the basis for the committee's opinion. The countries are Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, El Salvador, Germany, Great Britain, Japan, Malaya, Netherlands, New Zealand, Panama Canal Zone, Sweden, United States and Venezuela. Projects are expected to be initiated shortly in Norway and Switzerland.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Sad Letter

DEAR STEW: You want me to celebrate the New Year by trying to sum up my impressions after 12 endlessly itinerant months as a foreign correspondent. It will be a pretty melancholy sort of celebration. The trouble is, simply, that I am frightened for the first time in my life. I can remember lying on the floor in inky darkness in Hong Kong, straining my ear against a ruined radio that was barely whispering the news of Pearl Harbor, while the Japanese bombs thumped down on the blacked-out city.

Of course I do not mean that I felt no fear for myself. The sound of bombs dropping affects me exactly as it affects the next man. I mean rather that I did not feel even a lingering doubt about the future of our country, the future of our civilization, the future of human decency and human freedom.

No such doubt has ever before crept into my mind, even although we Americans have committed great follies and have gone through some very rough patches in the quarter century of my working life.

Maybe I have been making the mistake of Ed Gingles, the superbly brave old man who was our leader in the prison camp where the Japs put me for awhile after Pearl Harbor.

Firm Conviction

In his years as a U.S. Navy petty officer, Ed had imbibed the firm conviction that no one on earth could beat the U.S. Navy. The British Navy he also regarded as a respectable force, but that ended Ed's list of serious fighting forces in the world.

Hence Ed flatly refused to believe the Japanese news of our reverses in those first terrible months of the war. But alas the Japanese news was only too true.

Maybe, I feel doubts about our future long before this. But you and I have always assumed that if the American people just understood the problems confronting them, they would manage to solve those problems somehow. So we have been called pessimists, because we have insisted on the seriousness of the problems, whereas we have been optimists, because we have believed the problems could successfully be solved.

If I feel doubts about our future now, moreover, it is not because I have been converted to the view that our basic problems are insoluble. I am plagued by doubt, rather, because it seems to me that the American response to the supreme challenge of the last year has been so sadly inadequate.

What has been this challenge? Essentially, it has been a sudden, brutal confrontation with the consequences of five years and more of self-indulgence.

We were lulled by leaders who sometimes refused to believe the intelligence and who sometimes simply lied about it. So the American nation allowed its power to be overtaken and surpassed by the power of the Soviet Union.

That was the central lesson of this last year's turbulent events.

When Allen Dulles was at last permitted to make an honest presentation of our real power-position to the leaders of Congress, I am told that Sen. Byrd's only question was, "When are they going to hit us?"

But I do not think there is much danger of our being directly hit by the great nuclear striking power the Soviets have acquired. We still have enough power to hit back, to make this particular and extreme kind of danger quite remote and unreal.

Real Danger

The real and present danger is much more complex. It shows up in the greatly increased boldness and aggressiveness of the Kremlin, in the Middle East, for example. It shows up in our own greater timidity (for who has heard Secretary Dulles talking of massive retaliation lately?) And it shows up in the visible loosening of the vital bonds of the whole Western alliance.

A cataclysm, ending life on earth, is not what these signs portend. But they very clearly point to a series of local defeats and local surrenders which will gradually impair the strength, undermine the economy and encroach upon the borders of the free world.

In the '30s, Hitler took half of Europe by piecemeal nibbling and grabbing operations, in which he was always protected by the fear inspired by his superior power. That is just what the Kremlin is expecting and preparing to do, on a world scale, in the late '30s and early '40s.

At the end of the '30s the British and French awoke to the fact that they could not hope to survive in a Europe dominated by Hitler. I do not think that islands of remaining freedom in America and Western Europe can hope to survive either, in a world dominated by the Kremlin. Hence I now fear for our future for the first time.

But I would not be afraid, if I could only see a new, vigorous and wise American leadership telling the honest truth to our people, seriously mobilizing the vast resources of our country, and sternly preparing to discharge America's heavy but glorious responsibility as the last, best hope of freedom in the world. As ever—Joe.

The Little Blue Air Forms

MARGARET looked at the little air forms lying on her desk beneath the pigeon-hole marked "Christmas-letters-to-be-answered."

Like little blue threads holding families together, she thought. Multiplied a million-fold, they bind up the Commonwealth. They're so familiar and so human and so like families, she thought, taking up the letter from old Aunt Mary who lived with her even older sister, Julia.

She herself was very well, Aunt Mary wrote, though Julia was having a little trouble with her asthma and seemed to be showing her age at last. But the asthma had been better after the visit to Edith in the summer. Such a pleasant visit it had been, and they'd taken dear little Spot with them.

Margaret picked up Aunt Julia's letter next. She herself was very well, Aunt Julia wrote, but Mary wasn't as well as she might be, and seemed to be showing her age at last. But she'd seemed better after a visit to Edith in the summer. They'd taken little Spot with them, and Spot had had a wonderful time.

Have a Happy Christmas, Edith wrote to Margaret. And Margaret would probably hear from Julia and Mary. Getting so old, the poor dears, and still looking after each other so devotedly. Though, of course, they had their little spats from time to time! They'd brought Spot with them in the summer, and Spot was even fatter and more spoiled than his predecessor, Smut. If such a thing were possible!

Ruth

Peter had been in France for the summer, wrote another cousin. He'd gone with a friend from school, and the two of them had cycled everywhere, and stayed at Youth Hostels. Their funds were running low towards the end, and privately Peter's mother thought they hadn't eaten much for the last two days.

May had married, Dorothea wrote. Such a nice young man, but no job at all so far as she could see. May would manage, though. She'd always been so capable. And old Hetty Higginson had married. Sixty if she was a day, my dear, and no one in the village knew anything about it.

How solid and familiar it all is, thought Margaret, skimming a letter about an older son who'd been so tiresome in school and never worked at all. The younger boy was just as sweet and easy as he'd always been, she read, and wasn't it queer that in one family, two brothers could be so different.

Births, marriages, deaths, the young growing up, the old needing attention—all were there in the little blue air forms. It's the central core of life, reflected Margaret, and let her mind wander among the branches of the family—to Rosamund who was so gay and difficult, to solid Bridget working diligently and being rather dull, to Michael winning his scholarship, to Peter holidaying in France, and to poor Susette producing a fourth baby boy when all she wanted was a daughter.

Yes, those are the little blue air forms. They've been reaching Victoria by the score this Christmas. They've come from almost every city and county in Britain.

And, unless I'm very much mistaken, this is the sort of gossip family news they have been bringing.

By WALLACE REYBURN

Skyscraper 'Too Urban'

LONDON—The many times I've been in the region of Buckingham Palace I've often noticed that it isn't possible to get a good look inside its huge grounds. On foot, of course, it is out of the question because of the high brick wall—surmounted by spikes—which surrounds the whole property.

From the top of a bus passing by you can look over the wall but even in winter, with the trees bare, you can't glimpse much more than some lawns at the far end of the grounds from the palace, a couple of tennis courts and a pond—and, let alone seeing the Queen, Philip or the Royal children, just nobody ever seems to be around in that part of the property.

From adjoining buildings, nowhere that I know of can anyone get a full view into what amounts to the palace's back garden.

That's as it should be, because the least thing the Royal family should have is some privacy.

But the London County Council is now worried that this traditional Royal privacy is likely to be invaded. The U.S. Hilton Hotels, linking up with English financiers, want to put up a super skyscraper hotel on Park Lane. At the public inquiry now going on, at which the LCC and the hotel promoters are debating the project, one of the objections put forward by the LCC is that anyone on the roof of the building, armed with strong binoculars, could get a good peek at such things as Prince Philip teaching son Charles cricket on the back lawn.

Worse than that, say the LCC, it would be an invitation for news photographers with telephoto lenses on their cameras to take intimate shots of the Royal family.

All right, say the hotel men, we'll change the plans of the building so that from nowhere in it will it be possible to get a bird's-eye view of what's going on behind the palace.

But this isn't the LCC's main objection to the proposed hotel, on which already $2-million has been sent at the site about 50 yards down Park Lane from the famous Dorchester Hotel. Only too glad to have a lavish new hotel for London, the LCC balk at the idea of it being 34 stories high.

Park Lane, with buildings none of which are more than 10 stories on one side and the wide vista of Hyde Park on the other, is regarded by the LCC as a city setting which has "a unique rural and pastoral nature." The hoteliers say that on the small site available, they can't do anything but go up high to make the hotel economic.

If it does get itself built, the hotel will be London's tallest building—eight feet more than the city's present highest 370-foot St. Paul's, and much taller than any other hotel or office building.

Present runners-up to St. Paul's: Victoria Tower of Houses of Parliament (340), Big Ben (320), St. Pancras Hotel tower (270), London University (210), Shell Mex House (190).

Oil Imports Curbs Political Says Times

LONDON (CP)—The Times says the decision by the United States to cut oil imports from Canada by 15 per cent reflects that "enduring dichotomy" of American trade policy.

In an editorial reviewing "restrictive forces" within the U.S. oil industry, The Times says the latest decision had "naturally caused angry outbursts from across the border."

"Canadian ministers rule out—in public at least—the suggestion that the United States is retaliating for the Canadian government's proposal to divert 15 per cent of Canadian-United States trade to Britain.

"The odd thing is that the new restriction is probably rightly regarded as a step in the president's policy of getting still further powers under a renewed Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act to advance the cause of freer trade.

"It reflects thus the enduring dichotomy for multilateral free trade against which other countries' policies are invariably measured and judged and the concessions made when politically-powerful interests at home are liable to be hurt."

Talks Open On U.S. Bases In France

PARIS (AP)—Exploratory discussions have opened in Washington for the location of intermediate range ballistic missile bases in France, a government spokesman said today.

State Secretary Dulles and Ambassador Herve Alphand are engaged in talks but these cannot yet be called negotiations, the spokesman said. The purpose is to find an agreed basis for more formal dealing.

Specifically, he said, Dulles and Alphand have taken up the conditions for the use of the new weapons, technical aspects of their installation and financing of the launching sites.

It is understood France wants veto power over firing of atomic-powered weapons and actual control of at least some of the atomic weapons to be stored in France. Moreover, NATO circles said, France wants the United States to pay the bill for installation.

Pair Killed, $1 Million Toll in Blasts

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Gas explosions and fires in two downtown areas early Sunday resulted in the death of a middle-aged couple and caused property damage estimated up to $1,000,000.

William McGrath, 63, died in a hospital several hours after an explosion from seeping gas destroyed his home. His wife, 54, was killed in a second-floor bedroom.

Leader Rotation Scored by Martin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hon. Paul Martin flew into Vancouver Sunday to seek support of his contest this month for Liberal party leadership and carefully side-stepped questions about his chances.

His only comment on the leadership race was a sharp criticism of the party's tradition of rotation between French and English-speaking leaders.

He said he feels "very strongly" that there is no valid reason for such a policy and it should be dropped.

"I feel the only consideration before a national Liberal convention should be which candidate is qualified best," the bilingual former health minister from Windsor, Ont., told a press conference.

Martin and Pearson are front-running contestants in the leadership battle at the Jan. 14-16 party convention in Ottawa.

Turning to politics in general Martin criticized government policy in the fields of trade and unemployment and said these will cause deterioration of the economy and result in "a very serious mess."

He said he does not blame the government for unemployment caused by world conditions, but he blames Prime Minister Diefenbaker for failing to solve the problem after prommenting until it has had a chance to implement its election promises. When the next election comes the Liberals have a "reasonable expectation" of success, he said.

HON. PAUL MARTIN

Trade Switch to Boost Jobless

He said Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal for a 15 per cent switch in Canada's trade from the U.S. to Britain also was along the line of policy followed by the former Conservative prime minister and would antagonize Canada's best customer.

The trade switch scheme also will worsen the unemployment situation, said Martin, and the recent 15 per cent curtailment of U.S. oil imports from Canada looked very much like a retaliatory measure.

The former minister said Liberals should not try to defeat the government in parlia-

REDS WINNING IN FAR EAST, MLA FINDS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Tom Bate, Social Credit member of the B.C. Legislature for Vancouver East, returned Sunday from a two-month tour of India, Pakistan and Ceylon and said he believes Communism is winning the battle for men's minds in the east.

Only western help, under such schemes as the Colombo Plan, so far has prevented Communist victory in south-east Asia, he said in an interview.

Mr. Bate, who represented Alberta and B.C. at British Commonwealth Parliamentary Association conference in the three countries, said he is convinced Canada's contribution to the Colombo Plan must be continued.

"If the west doesn't continue assistance to these Asian nations, then they will swing to the Russian side," he said.

Queen May Visit India, Pakistan

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth is reported considering a visit to India and Pakistan—possibly next December.

The Sunday Empire News said both the Queen and Prime Minister Macmillan feel a royal trip to India will help Britain strengthen its Commonwealth ties with that country. A trip to Pakistan, the paper added, might help heal the breach between India and Pakistan on the Kashmir issue.

The paper said Macmillan will sound out India on the idea of the royal visit when he flies there this week on his Commonwealth tour.

Fire Alarm Too Late, Blasts Chief

(From CP Dispatches)

LANGLEY — "That fire had been going for eight minutes before anybody called the fire department," said Fire Chief Robert Norman after flames caused about $25,000 in damage to the Jim Scott service station here Friday.

"We were beaten before we got there," he added bitterly. "People were so busy moving cars out of the station that they didn't even think of calling us."

First alarm to the fire department, he said, came from a man who lives across the street from the garage. He heard the noise as residents rolled vehicles out of danger and phoned the professional fire-fighters.

The blaze broke out apparently after oil spilled from a heater.

VANDALS REMANDED
NORTH VANCOUVER — Two high school students were remanded one week without plea Friday on charges of breaking and entering their own school last month.

Glen E. Miller, 17, and James Douglas Fletcher, 16, were released on $1,000 bail each by Magistrate John Poole.

They were transferred from juvenile court to police court to face the charges, laid in connection with $5,500 damage to Delbrook High School Dec. 28.

SWAMPED BY RAIN
TERRACE — Torrential rain turned Terrace streets into rivers of slush Friday. Dozens of cars were stalled in the central B.C. village. The rain began at 11 p.m. Thursday and was still falling late Friday afternoon on top of 50 to 60 inches of snow.

No Decision Made On Wheat Payment
OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said Friday the government has reached no decision on whether to make a deficiency payment—or subsidy—on the 1956-57 wheat crop.

"That subject has been under study but no decision has been reached at the moment," he said in the Commons.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Family Capacity Dictates Vegetable Garden Sowings

By JACK BEASTALL

A well organized vegetable garden should produce sufficient variety and quantity for the kitchen table throughout the year.

To accomplish this, careful planning is necessary. Gluts of vegetables are caused by over sowing crops which will not keep once they have matured. A good example of this is the cauliflower.

Each plant occupies an appreciable amount of space and produces only one head which must be cut and eaten as soon as it matures.

Unfortunately most gardens are comparatively small and only a few plants can be accommodated, and these have the habit of maturing all at once.

Lettuce presents very much the same problem as this is another crop which must be used as soon as it matures. One often sees rows of beautifully headed plants which cannot possibly be consumed.

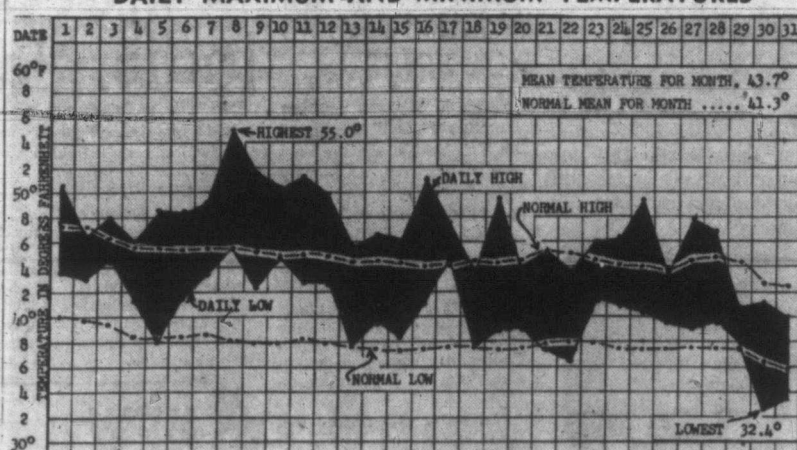

MILD YOUTHS
Another salad crop, the biggest proportion of which usually goes to waste is radish. To enjoy the full flavor of this crop it should be eaten when quite young, when it will be found crisp and mild.

Runner beans may also be included in crops which are mismanaged. The rows are usually too long and the beans become too tough and stringy before they can be used.

Two facts make themselves very clear. They are, the need for careful planning and the correct choice of varieties. The golden rule should be to sow little and often so that one crop succeeds the other without a break.

The importance of variety cannot be over-emphasized. Lettuce should be sown late in summer for cutting in November, or sown in the fall to

Eye-Appealing Array of Cars At Chicago Show

CHICAGO (AP)—An eye-appealing array of automobiles, probably the most glamorous ever presented under one roof, went on display Saturday at the International Amphitheatre.

The Golden Jubilee Chicago Automobile Show begins a nine-day run with approximately 400 cars and trucks and the usual adjuncts of an auto show, including a musical revue. Included in the exhibits are 1958 models of every U.S. car, a large group of antique vehicles dating back more than half a century and 100 foreign-built units.

An estimated 25,000 persons, including representatives of the industry, press, radio and television and others, saw a preview of the show Friday night.

Chrysler Corp. included in its exhibit a first public showing of the United States Army's two ballistic missiles, the 63-foot Redstone and the Jupiter. The weapons—genuine missiles and not scale models—have self-contained guidance systems and are said to be relatively immune to known types of counter-measures.

CITY BANK CLEARINGS TOP $500,000,000

Volume of business at the Victoria clearing house for 1957 was $518,385,445, topping the $500,000,000 mark for the second successive year.

The 1957 total, however, was $32,187,808 short of the record $550,573,253 in 1956.

Drop in the 1957 total occurred mostly in the past six months, though the December total indicated a more normal rate of spending. This was $38,911,535, compared with $40,832,692 in the same 1956 month.

In the last half of 1957, average weekly exchanges were from 10 to 15 per cent lower than those of 1956.

Doukhobor Delegation En Route to Moscow

VANCOUVER (CP)—A four-man Sons of Freedom Doukhobor delegation left here Friday for Moscow in hopes of completing plans for a mass move of the religious sect to new homes in Russia.

Bill Moolefsky, delegation leader and Freedomite secretary, said the delegation plans to stop over in Ottawa to confer with Russian Ambassador Dimitri Chuvahin.

In Russia the delegation will inspect sites offered there for relocation of the sect, Moolefsky said.

The Russian ambassador said in Ottawa Friday he sees no difficulties in the way of the delegation's visit to Moscow. However, to his knowledge no sites had been offered the Freedomites.

Radishes should only be sown in very small quantities and not thickly. There is the choice of sowing in odd corners of the garden or between the rows of crops such as lettuce.

A shorter row of runner beans with the plants well spaced at a distance of 9 inches to 1 foot will make picking easier. Ten feet of row per person is about average.

For summer cutting one should always choose a variety not prone to bolt.

YEAR-ROUND
Lettuce should be sown at fortnightly intervals in small quantities, thus providing heads for cutting throughout the year.

The actual length of row to sow will naturally vary considerably but a rough average may be considered as 8 feet per person per sowing.

In the case of cauliflower it is a good idea to purchase a variety of dwarf habit producing solid, medium-sized curds. If seed is sown in the open in March the heads should be ready for cutting in late July through August. Seed can be sown at any time to suit individual requirements.

BCPC Production Hits New High
PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—British Columbia Power Commission production reached an all-time high for this city during November.

District manager Jack Dobie said Friday production from the four gas and diesel-fired units at the new generating station climbed to 2,810,000 kilowatt hours.

Highest previously recorded by the Prince George plant was 2,500,000, reached in January, 1957.

Mr. Dobie said the commission is saving on costs by using natural gas but carrying charges on the new $2,500,000 plant will absorb these savings.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Holds Gains In Moderate Trading

Although making no further upward motion, the Toronto stock market held its gains today in moderate trading.

Base metals were more than three-quarters of a point higher on index and industrials were up one-half point. Western oils and golds had smaller index gains.

Steels and some aircraft kept fractional gains but the New York market as a whole was mixed in quiet trading. Gains and losses among key stocks ran from fractions to about a point.

AT TORONTO pipelines and banks featured industrial winners although Loblaws Inc. and Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, on a few sales each, had the biggest gains, each up five points.

Trans Mountain Pipeline was up a point to 60 and Bank of Montreal gained 1½ points at 40. Other gains and most losses were generally fractional.

Senior base metals had an edge of three-to-one on the upside with most high-priced

TODAY'S GRAIN
WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—Weakness on United States markets were reflected generally in trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Dealings were dull in oats, barley and rye, but fairly active in flax. October contracts were authorized for trading.

Prices of flax were irregular and showed hesitation under commission house selling and a few buying orders for American accounts appeared on recessions.

Oats and barley had a few routine domestic feed orders, and prices moved narrowly. Rye sold off with the U.S. trade. Support was thin and prices declined.

There were no reports of overseas business, but some inquiry for flax was reported.

Weekend loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 435,000 bushels, India 445,000, Belgium 260,000, West Germany 40,000 and The Netherlands 20,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were up three-eighths cent from Friday.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO (AP)—General selling pushed soybean and grain futures lower on the board of trade today.

Lack of export demand and favorable weather and crop news accounted for declines in wheat, with the deferred months down more than a cent a bushel on the outlook for a large crop in the southwest this year.

Action in wheat caused selling of other grains.

Soybeans were off better than a cent a bushel and rye retreated for losses up to nearly two cents. Profit-taking following last week's rally influenced selling of most grades.

Newspaper Ads In Color Rated 'Hot' Development

NEW YORK (AP)—Members of the continent's largest organization of retail merchants got a first-hand report today on what has been called the hottest development in the field of advertising.

The opening session of the 47th annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association was devoted to a demonstration of run-of-paper (ROP) color advertising in newspapers.

About 5,000 retailers from all parts of the country and a 52-man Canadian delegation were on hand for the convention, which continues through Thursday.

A survey of 2,000 stores showed that (ROP) color now is available to 60 per cent of them in their local newspapers, and that 58 per cent of these use it. Fifty-four per cent reported "fair" results, 38 per cent "good" and 8 per cent "poor."

Tourists: How Vital To Victoria Economy?

How important is the tourist industry to the Greater Victoria economy?

That was the question raised today following publication of a survey of the city's tourist industry conducted by the Capital Region Planning Board.

The report quoted many figures, but arrived at no conclusions.

FOUR MONTHS

The survey was conducted this summer in the four-month period from June to September. It found that 400,000 tourists visited the area in this time.

Over the whole year the total would probably be about four times the 125,000 population of Greater Victoria.

The 400,000 tourists spent a total of $8,600,000.

Largest expenditures were on shopping, $3,200,000, or 37 per cent of the total.

2 PER CENT

The survey found that tourist shopping accounts for 2 per cent of the area's total retail sales.

Although detailed figures are unavailable for comparison, the surveyors estimate unofficially that the tourist industry represents roughly 3 per cent of the area's total economy.

This figure is not included in the report, however.

GREAT VALUE

Conway Parrott, a director of the Victoria and Island publicity Bureau, said today "any industry that brings in $8,600,000 of new money is of great value to our community."

This money is distributed throughout the whole economy, Mr. Parrott said.

Without the tourist trade here, there would be no Empress Hotel, no Butchart Gardens, poorer transportation facilities and many other losses, he pointed out.

"The tourist business in Victoria is a very important part of our economy and of our life," Mr. Parrott said.

Food accounted for $2,000,000 of tourist spending; accommodation $1,900,000; car expenditures $500,000 and unspecified $1,000,000.

The report broke down the $3,200,000 expenditure on shopping this way:

Clothing $1,200,000; linen and woollens $900,000; china and crystalware $500,000; other $600,000.

OLD MUSIC

Stringed instruments played with a bow, ancestors of the violin, were known many centuries ago in Asia.

Tourist spending on clothing represents 10 per cent of the total sales by clothing stores.

Most of the tourists travelled here by car and the largest proportion of automobiles came from other parts of British Columbia and California. Almost two-thirds travelled via Nanaimo.

Washington was not far behind California in the list, and many more came from there by air or steamship without automobiles.

Information in the report was gained from answers to questionnaires handed out to tourists.

One of the questions asked if the visitors had any complaints.

Eight per cent said they were dissatisfied with the restaurants here; 6 per cent with hotels and motels; 6 per cent with traffic and parking; 2 per cent with stores, and 1 per cent with garages.

About half the tourists made unsolicited comments indicating they were favorably impressed by the physical attractiveness of the area.

Some 3 per cent were dissatisfied with the price of merchandise and another 3 per cent with the exchange rate.

SEEPING GAS CAUSE OF MONTREAL BLAST

MONTREAL (CP)—Seeping domestic gas is believed to have sparked an explosion that demolished a two-storey building in the north end Saturday, sending 14 persons—including seven children—to hospital.

The blast trapped 11 persons in the shattered-brick and wood-splintered rubble of the structure at the intersection of Henri Julien Avenue and Faillon Street. Flying debris injured three others.

Firemen and rescue workers fought through a tangled mass of wires and beams to reach many of the stunned victims.

Sadists' Cat Torture Scored

"Patches," a quiet spayed cat belonging to Mrs. Hazel Hampton, 740 Kings, arrived home about midnight Friday with a piece of strong string tied to its tail, and a "teaser" piece of paper on the end of that. "I'm not foolish about animals," said Mrs. Hampton, "but such sadism is abominable." She said it required two persons to remove the string which had cut deeply into the swollen tail. Mrs. Hampton discounted the suggestion the cat-torture may have been the work of juveniles "because it apparently happened so late at night."

Hawks Win Twice for New Coach; Blueshirts Drop Fifth Straight

By The Canadian Press

For one team in the National Hockey League, the rest of the schedule is apparently only a formality. But for the five other teams, a nip-and-tuck race is just beginning.

Montreal Canadiens won both weekend games to increase their first-place lead to 16 points over New York Rangers. A 4-0 victory Sunday in New York all but destroyed any illusions about an upset in the race to the title. But the loss—New York's fifth straight—and three straight wins by the last-place Chicago Black Hawks tightened the spread between second and sixth place to seven points from 13.

COACHING DEBUTS

The weekend also featured the coaching debuts of Rudy Pilous of Chicago and Sid Abel of Detroit. Hawks won two games for Pilous, who took over from Tommy Ivan, defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 Saturday and Boston Bruins 4-3 Sunday.

Red Wings lost 2-1 Saturday to Montreal Canadiens as Jim Skinner watched Abel's progress but won 3-2 Sunday at home against Toronto Maple Leafs when Abel officially took over.

In Saturday's third game Boston defeated New York 7-4. The results left Bruins in third place, three points behind New York and one ahead of Detroit. Toronto trails the Wings by two points and is one ahead of Chicago.

LEAD ALL DEPARTMENTS

Montreal's victories made a shambles of the standings. And during their latest rampage—six straight victories—they've been without Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Jean Beliveau, both out with injuries.

Sunday at New York the Canadiens scored four goals in the first period and then coasted to victory. It was only their third win against five losses in nine games against the Rangers.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion scored his 17th and 18th goals and had an assist. Dickie Moore and Claude Provost were the other Montreal scorers. Saturday Don Marshall's 15th goal tied the game in the third period and Bert Olmstead tipped in Doug Harvey's shot to win it. Red Kelly scored for Detroit.

Ron Murphy scored the tying and winning goals for Chicago Sunday. Ed Litzenger and Billy Dea were the other Hawk scorers.

Johnny Bucyk, Bronco Horvath and Fleming Mackell scored for Boston.

Ted Lindsay sparked the Hawks Saturday with two goals, the second into an empty net after Toronto removed goalie Ed Chadwick for a sixth forward.

Pierre Pilote and Dea also scored for Chicago. Billy Harris and George Armstrong were the Leaf marksmen.

Boston scored six goals within seven minutes in the third period Saturday to come from behind a three-goal deficit and beat New York. Bucyk had three goals and Vic Stasiuk a goal and three assists.

Also scored: Real Bruin marksmen were Red Chevrefils, Larry Regan and Jerry Toppazzini.

Scoring for New York were George (Red) Sullivan and Dave Creighton. It was Henry's 20th goal of the year. He is tied for the goal-scoring lead with Detroit's Gordie Howe.

Howe's 20th came Sunday and was the winning goal against Toronto. Detroit has yet to lose to Toronto this season, having won five and tied two. The loss was Toronto's fourth straight.

John Wilson and Kelly also scored for Detroit. Brian Cullen and Tod Sloan scored for Toronto.

BEV'S FAVORITE DISH—COUGARS

Cats Continue Search And Nobody Unpacking

For most professional hockey clubs, five days between games would add up to a welcome respite from worries. But not for Victoria Cougars.

At least one of the current crop of Cats will be missing when they resume their Western Hockey League warfare at Vancouver Friday and the Cougars today are wondering, where and how often will the axe fall.

Acquisition of veteran defenceman "Rags" Raglan Saturday means that the roster must be trimmed to get the club back to the 15-player limit and the Cougar management promises that other changes will be made in an attempt to improve the team, which is now 19 points behind third-place Seattle in the Coast Division race.

KILBURN SCOUTING
Manager Colin Kilburn, who, along with Eddie Dorohoy will perform in the WHL's first all-star game at Calgary Wednesday, left today on an Alberta scouting trip that may result in one or more other players joining the club—and the need for more chopping.

Kilburn, planning to visit Red Deer Tuesday, will look over several players who may help his club. But whether or not he lands any additional talent on the trip, Kilburn left no doubt that several changes are planned.

"The boys had better keep their bags packed until we start winning," he said this morning. "We don't play again until Friday and Pat (coach Pat Egan) is going to try several combinations in practice and will decide one or more players to be cut this week. And we'll continue to bring in any available players we think may help the club. Everybody is playing for his job from now on."

Egan declined to comment on any probable roster slashes, but since Raglan is the third defenceman obtained in 25 days, it is expected there will be a reduction in blueline personnel.

RAGS READY
Bud Syverson came to Victoria from Calgary Dec. 18. John Yanchuk, on loan from New Westminster, played his second game with the Cats as they dropped a 3-1 decision at New Westminster Saturday night, and Raglan, signed as a free agent, will be ready to go at Vancouver Friday.

Veteran of nine professional seasons, Raglan was with Vancouver part of last season and played with Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals this season until released last week to make room for comeback-trying Doug Bentley.

One of hockey's busiest travellers, the colorful, 30-year-old defenceman played exactly 100 games during parts of three seasons in the National Hockey League—33 with Detroit in the 1950-51 season and 35 and 32 with Chicago in the next two campaigns.

He also performed with three American Hockey League clubs—Buffalo, Indianapolis and St. Louis—Quebec Aces in the Quebec League and Edmonton Flyers in the WHL and will be with his 10th professional club when he joins the Cougars.

Egan shook up his forward lines at New Westminster Saturday and the Cougars came up with an aggressive display that was once again spoiled by goalie Bev Bentley.

Gordie Haworth was moved over from a pivot position to a left-wing spot, with Dorohoy and winger Doug Kilburn. Stan Baluk, a centre who has been playing on the wing, was shifted back to centre between Frank Milne and Blinky Boyce.

Egan had Colin Kilburn on the left flank with Junior Wilson and right-winger Doug Macaulay, a combination that showed promise.

The juggled lines produced a total of 39 shots at the New Westminster goal, but only one found its way past Bentley, who was the difference as he came up with another of the night's Cougars have learned to expect.

Baluk scored the lone Cougar goal at 1:14 of the third period, 29 seconds after clever Max McNab had given the Royals a 2-1 lead.

Gary Edmundson opened the scoring while Egan was serving a first-period penalty, firing a screened shot past goalie Emile Francis, who turned aside a total of 25 drives in a steady performance.

Cougars will make their next appearance at Memorial Arena on Saturday night, when they host the second-place Royals.

Fielder Turns In Brilliant Display

Seattle Smoothie Figures in 11 Straight Goals

By The Canadian Press

Guyle Fielder, the 27-year-old dynamo with Seattle Americans, turned in a prodigious scoring performance during the weekend to boost his Western Hockey League stock and put him well on the track towards another league scoring championship.

Fielder, whose past record includes rookie-of-the-year awards in three separate leagues and the all-time professional record number of points scored in a season, counted three goals and added eight assists in two weekend games against Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals in the Minnesota city.

He went into last week's scoring race with a one-point edge over the field and there was little doubt his most recent performance put him beyond the immediate reach of his competition.

SEATTLE SPLIT TWO

Despite their golden boy's output, Seattle could do no better than an even split in the two games. Saskatoon-St. Paul won 7-5 after an early deficit Saturday night and Seattle took a 6-0 decision Sunday. Fielder figured in all 11 Seattle goals—a feat that must surely be some sort of a pro record.

New Westminster Royals defeated last-place Victoria Cougars 3-1 to move to within three points of the Coast Division leaders, Vancouver Canucks. Calgary Stampeders got their 13th victory in 35 starts in the only other league action, edging the Prairie front-running Winnipeg Warriors 3-2.

Against Seattle Saturday night, Howard Yackel got two goals and two assists for the Regals and his goal output was matched by Les Colville. Bob Chynoweth, Lyle Willey and Gerry Couture scored once each.

Besides Fielder, the Seattle scorers were Ray Kinasewich, with two; Gordie Sinclair and Rudy Filion.

The next day, Kinasewich again scored twice and Sinclair and Val Fonteyne got the others as Seattle scored two goals in each period.

It was the biggest Calgary crowd of the season, 5,864 fans, which saw the Stampeders get their rare victory in a stormy contest.

FINNEY SCORES WINNER

Sid Finney got the winning goal after Enio Scisizzi and Steve Wituk counted the first two. Pete Kapusta and Gordie Redahl were the Winnipeg marksmen.

Hometown coach Gus Kyle was dismissed from the game in the second period after raising his fists with Winnipeg defenceman Dan Summers, and the Warriors' Frank Arnett got a game misconduct after some verbal sparring late in the third with referee Vern Buefley.

MacNutt's Keep Rival Squads on Their Toes

MacNutt's may not be winning any games in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association's Division I but they are making things interesting for their rivals.

Edged, 1-0, in a recent meeting with Mariners, the Grocers again battled Mariners down to the wire Sunday before yielding a 2-1 decision.

Barney Fredrickson, who fired the goal that produced the 1-0 win, and Tom Collett counted for Mariners, while Dick Gibson scored for MacNutt's. Joe Stebeck rapped in three goals as Texaco's downed Langford Buffaloes, 5-0, in a Division II tussle. Bob Mall and Fred Potts scored the other goals.

In a Division VII exhibition Sunday, Jimmy Butterfield connected twice and Vern DeMelt scored once as Nanaime Elks blanked Victoria Optimists, 3-0.

Victoria West won first-half honors in Division III Saturday by nipping Heaneys, 2-1, in a sudden-death playoff, while Esquimalt Legion, winless in the first-half Division VII schedule, launched the second half with a 5-0 triumph over Central Post Office.

Saturday's scorers and results:
DIVISION VII
Esquimalt Optimists—Howard Anderson 1, Bruce McConna, Brian Ridgeway, Hampton Eagles—No score.

Esquimalt Legion—Doug Bicknell 1, Robert Moss, Jim Buchanan, Total 1, Central Post Office—No score.

Shepherd's Dairy—Mike Grass 2, Res. Gorgevay—No score.

Optimists—Norman Pile 2, Bob Moffat 2, Bruce McConna, Brian Ridgeway, Total 4, Hampton Eagles—No score.

Marlette Royals 2, Victoria Tire 1, Reynolds, Eagles defeated Spanish Thistles (default).

Brianne Legion—Don McCormick 1, Total 3, No score.

IT HURTS POCKETBOOK

There's Always One Drawback to Winning

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Thin, sharp-featured John Quinn, general manager of the Milwaukee Braves, doesn't resemble Santa Claus but he'll probably discover in contract talks that his world baseball champions expect him to act like one.

The Braves' front office expects to mail out 1958 contracts at the end of the week, well before the major league dead-lins of Jan. 15. With the National League pennant and World Series stowed away, there's little doubt that salary demands will be high. Just about all the Braves will expect raises, hefty ones in many cases.

"I just don't know what to say," Quinn commented today when asked whether he expected difficulty in signing up his players. "You never can tell until the time comes."

Hometown coach Gus Kyle was dismissed from the game in the second period after raising his fists with Winnipeg defenceman Dan Summers, and the Warriors' Frank Arnett got a game misconduct after some verbal sparring late in the third with referee Vern Buefley.

It was the biggest Calgary crowd of the season, 5,864 fans, which saw the Stampeders get their rare victory in a stormy contest.

Sid Finney got the winning goal after Enio Scisizzi and Steve Wituk counted the first two. Pete Kapusta and Gordie Redahl were the Winnipeg marksmen.

PALPITATIONS PLEASE FEARLESS

Heck, You Don't Have To Be Good---Just Funny

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—The baseball writers are balloting today for 10 nominees to the Hall of Fame and, being against such secrecy as the most valuable player voting, Fearless Fraley is making his selections public.

Everybody isn't going to agree with Old Fearless, either. Because my reasons for a guy being famous and worthy of being enshrined at Cooperstown may not be considered as technically sound. But these are my guys and, in case you don't remember they were ball players, I'll get around to that later.

Babe Herman, Mace Brown, Francky Bordagaray, Lon Warneke, Moe Berg, Lefty Gomez, Pepper Martin, George Stinewiss, Rudy York, and Leo Durocher.

It seems, to me, that there is too much accent in the Hall of Fame on guys who could hit, run and throw. Personally, I'd rather have a few palpitations instead of pennants. Besides, then people aren't always bothering you for world series tickets.

Take Herman, now, and there were many times the Dodgers wished somebody else had. But there was never a dull moment when the Babe was around—particularly at third base where he usually wound up with some of his fellow baserunners. But the Babe deserves "in" just for his reply alone when a book salesman tried to sell him a set of encyclopedias for his son.

"Heck," quoth the Babe, "his Velocipede ain't wore out yet."

Consider Mace Brown, one of my men of renown. During the 1946 World Series against the Cardinals, Mace trudged in from the Red Sox bullpen during a Redbird hitting spree which set an all-time series record. Four pitches—four balls up against the wall, Mace trudged off.

Entering the locker room he was asked: "Did you get 'em out?" Mace's reply was a classic which deserves lasting fame. "Hell, no."

Lon Warneke gets a vote from me not because he was a fine pitcher. There's hundreds of those. But didn't he have the purtiest nickname: "The Arkansas Humming Bird."

Bordagaray deserves a niche, and I'll debate it. What other third baseman, I ask you, ever played the hot corner with a flowing Van Dyke?

The hall of fame without Gomez is a joke. Sure, he could pitch. But his sense of humor is unparalleled. How about the time when everybody was bragging how smart Tony Lazzeri was. On a double play ball with Lazzeri out of the play, Gomez flipped the astonished Tony the ball.

"Well," quoth Lefty, "everybody says how smart he is. I wanted to see what he'd do with it."

Moe Berg ought to be there as the smartest man in the history of the game. He speaks nine, or 99, languages, and, boy, could he burn those umpires behind a smile and a quick shot of sulphurous Sanskrit.

Martin, as a frustrated race driver who was the chestiest third baseman of all time, should be preserved in bronze (even his managers always thought so); Rudy York's shining pate made him one of the most illustrious of them all as the white men took loquacious revenge on his Indian ancestors, and Stinewiss gets a nod on his 309 batting championship in 1945, the lowest highest in 40 years.

Durocher maybe you can't see. But he contributed a cliché to the language of the game when he barked: "Nice guys finish last."

So how, even I'm wondering, did I get him all the way down in 10th place?

Just wondering around . . .

Wonder what would happen if the Vancouver Indian who believes the centennial dollars are bad medicine would do it offered a hoghead full of them . . . wonder how many dollars would be needed to fill a hoghead . . . wonder what a hoghead is, anyhow . . .

Wonder if it's true the Victoria Cougars are the team to beat in the Western Hockey League? . . . personally, I think they . . . at least, nearly everyone seems to be beating them . . . wonder if it's true the game's the thing and it matters not to win or lose . . . and how many home-town fans feel that way . . .

Wonder whatever became of Davey Crockett hats . . . Milton Berle . . . the New Look . . . the Victoria courthouse . . . see B.C. first . . . Canada for Canadians . . . wonder whatever will become of Elvis Presley . . . wonder where you can get a good cup of coffee . . . wonder if it's true in B.C. that nothing is sure but debt and taxes . . .

Wonder if, when columnists meet, they do so in a jeer parlor . . . wonder if there really is a law against double-parking in this city . . . or are all those trucks standing three feet outside the line of parked cars on the curb nothing but optical illusions? . . . wonder if the Fountain Circle isn't a somewhat roundabout way to solve a traffic problem? . . .

Wonder if Don Smith doesn't feel better now that he's stopped moonlighting . . . wonder if the sudden disappearance of all talk about a civic auditorium isn't a bit odd, to say the least . . . wonder when Lawrence Wallace is going to take down his Christmas decorations . . . wonder if Cec Ridout is going to Hawaii to see about getting on the Dole . . . wonder how a fire can manage to burn without Frank Briers around to supervise . . .

Wonder what the last rose of summer (in Victoria, that is) said to the first rose of winter . . . wonder why in the world anyone would wish to live anywhere in the world but Victoria . . . wonder if the weatherman will shoot THAT one down in flames before it gets into print . . .

Just wondering around . . . and ah, the wonder of it all!

Ontario Sails For Five-Week Training Cruise

Rear-Admiral Herbert S. Rayner, Flag Officer Pacific Coast, took the salute at Duntze Head this morning as the training cruiser HMCS Ontario headed out into calm gray seas on her first 1958 seamanship cruise.

Relatives and friends waved farewell to the 68 first-year cadets aboard the Ontario, bound for Balboa, Acapulco and San Diego.

They will return to Esquimalt Feb. 10 with five weeks of practical seamanship training to their credit.

Under the command of Capt. J. C. Littler, Ontario will reach Balboa Jan. 17 for a four-day visit. She will arrive at Acapulco Jan. 25, and after a five-day stay, will sail on to San Diego for a three-day visit.

Most of the cadets on board are in the 17-18 age group.

JOIN FRIGATES

At San Diego, the cruiser will be joined by the frigates HMCS St. Therese and HMCS St. Laurent and the three ships will carry out naval exercises in company on the return voyage.

On Jan. 16 five ships of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron—Cayuga, Skeena, Fraser, Margaree and Crescent—will leave Esquimalt on an extended Pacific cruise, calling at Pearl Harbor and proceeding to Orient ports.

Names of the ports-of-call are still subject to approval from Ottawa.

HMCS Ontario will make another cruise later this year with senior naval cadets on board.

WATER SKI SPECTACLE PROPOSED

An international three-day water ski meet at Beaver Lake in August is the latest spectacle proposed to broaden centennial celebrations in this area.

Victoria Aqua Ski Club president, C. L. Johnson, has written to the council parks committee asking permission to hold the event on Beaver Lake. The lake is closed to motor boats without special permission.

Mr. Johnson said the club has opportunity to sponsor Canadian Open Water Ski championships here. In order to cover expenses, it would be necessary to charge admission to the lake shores.

Competitors would be expected from Mexico, Texas, Florida and other North American points.

The proposal will be discussed by the committee, probably next week.

City Tug Escorts Limping Freighter From Race Rocks

The Island Tug and Barge tug Sudbury today towed the 10,000-ton British freighter Baron Inverclyde to Esquimalt from Royal Roads for boiler repairs after escorting the vessel here Sunday when she broke down off Race Rocks.

The Inverclyde radioed at about 3 a.m. Sunday her boilers were not working and she was drifting about five miles off Race Rocks. When Sudbury arrived, the boilers were working again on a reduced scale and the Sudbury escorted her to Royal Roads.

The Baron Inverclyde was on a trip from Vancouver to Tahiti on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Yarrows will undertake the boiler repair work, expected to take about four days.

Victoria Tenor Fails in Audition For Metropolitan

Victoria tenor Michael Rogers, 27, failed Sunday in the finals held Sunday at Seattle in Metropolitan Opera auditions. He was one of 10 singers selected from four Pacific Northwest cities to enter the final session.

Only one singer was chosen, "a very fine soprano from Portland," Mr. Rogers said today. He will next take part in auditions for the San Francisco Opera Company to be held in Spokane, Wash., near the end of January.

Another city tenor, Andras Mata, 23, of Saseeno, was not included in the successful list of 10 finalists, although he made the semifinals.

SCHOOL BOARD TO NAME NEW CHAIRMAN

Four Inaugural Council Meetings Tonight

Greater Victoria residents will have their first opportunity tonight to see their 1958 municipal councils in action.

Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt all will hold their inaugural meetings. Highlights will be first-of-the-year speeches by reeves and mayor, and committee appointments.

The Greater Victoria School Board will also hold its first meeting of 1958 and a new chairman will be chosen to replace W. H. Golby, who retired from office last month. For Victoria residents, it is the only council meeting of the year which is regularly held in the evening. Council reverts to afternoon meetings at its next session. All other municipalities meet regularly at night.

Date of the first meeting is laid down in the Municipality Act.

All local councils will meet in their respective municipal halls, with the exception of Saanich, where the meeting will be in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall. Crowded conditions in the municipal hall have required use of council chamber for offices.

Baby Hurt in Crash; Police Car Cracks Up

A four-month-old baby girl was among four persons injured in weekend traffic accidents in Victoria.

Vicky Barge was a passenger in a car driven by Myron L. Barge, 22, 528 Cornwall, which was in collision with an auto driven by Joseph Watson, 519 Hillside, at Bay and Cook Saturday at 10:35 p.m.

The infant was treated for a nosebleed at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

The father received a cut behind the ear, and Gwen Henderson, 31, 1951 Bouchier, passenger in the other car, was treated for forehead cuts and released.

THREE CHARGES

Watson, who had left the scene of the accident allegedly to call city police, faced three charges in police court today. He pleaded guilty to careless driving, failing to remain at the scene and driving without a licence.

Court was told the accused drove east on Bay Street, through a stop sign at Cook and was in collision with the Barge car going south on Cook. He walked away from his damaged auto "to call the police" and did not return to the scene. He was later arrested.

Four Scows To Raise Sunken Derrick

Four scows Tuesday will start raising a sunken derrick resting on the bottom of Lime Bay.

The Island Tug and Barge derrick, the "Skookum," sank in 30 feet of water Dec. 23 when it struck a pile near the company's new property.

It will be raised and towed to Victoria Machinery Depot for repairs towards the end of the week.

The derrick, capable of lifting 20 tons, was left in the water over the holiday period because it presented no hazard to water traffic, a company official said.

TUESDAY MEETINGS

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

Sun-Baked Christmas

CERTAINLY is fun to come back home after a couple of weeks in the south—to find your garden full of broken tree limbs, your mail box full of cherry greetings, your kitchen full of mice.

Christmas in California! . . . Sounds magical, does it not? The fact is that it's a bizarre performance, for a frost-bitten Arctic family from Canada.

People in bathing suits walk around smiling and saying "Merry Christmas."

The loud-speaker system by the pool intones "Silent Night" on simulated bells, while mess-boys serve tall cool drinks.

A bronzed lifeguard pours three bottles of pure chlorine into the pool and cries: "Now, you kids, I want you to stay away from this end for five minutes."

In the hotel nearby—though it is Christmas Day—a man is doing a brisk business selling film and promising one-day service on black and white pictures.

Watson was remanded in police custody for sentence Tuesday.

Joseph Alfred Jacques, 30, 2539 Shakespeare, was treated at Jubilee for face and hand abrasions and bruised ribs after road and into a CPR boxcar the car he was parking on Esquimalt near Ithaca apparently hooked bumpers with a passing car driven by Frank Godwin, 427 Superior.

Jacques' car veered across the road and into a CPR boxcar

standing in E & N yards, causing moderate damage.

A city patrol wagon, rushing police to free a nine-year-old girl's hand from entanglement in a soft drink machine Sunday morning, went out of control at Douglas near Toronto and crashed into two parked cars, causing extensive damage but no injury.

Cons. John Burdyny, driver of the police van, continued to Beacon Drive Inn and released Monique Petrin, 668 Beacon, from the machine. Her hand was severely bruised but not broken.

The call was received at 11:05 a.m. The police car went into a spin, crashed into a car owned by Dominion Motors, 1314 Quadra, which had been parked off the west side of Douglas, then continued into another parked car, owned by George Usher, 332 Douglas.

There was heavy damage to the first car, medium damage to the second and slight damage to the police van.

THIEVES TAKE LIQUOR IN GOLF CLUB BREAK-IN

About $100 worth of liquor and eight cartons of cigarettes were stolen from Gorge Vale golf clubhouse overnight by thieves who forced a west side door.

Entry was discovered by Esquimalt police at 2:20 a.m. today.

Six locked doors inside the premises were forced as the thieves searched for valuables. A safe in the office was broken open but it contained no money.

GRACIOUS SNAKES ALIVE

Don't Look Now But Fifi's Gone

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Keep an eye open for Fifi if you are visiting the Provincial Museum in the next few weeks.

Fifi has gone missing from her glass "house" in the museum's entrance hall, and it is thought she is hiding somewhere in the building. What is she?

Fifi is a three-foot-long snake. She's known as a Rubber Boa, although don't be fooled by the "rubber" part. She's the real thing.

But Fifi is harmless . . . Snake people insist she can hurt you naught—physically, at least—despite her length and a "waist-line" similar to the girth of a garden hose. Incidentally, these same people describe her as "stubby-tailed" but it takes an expert to recognize where the stub starts.

They think she is hiding in a dark corner of the museum. And they say that when she gets hungry she will put in an appearance. She gets hungry about once every three months.

Fifi made her getaway with two other creatures of the reptile world when someone broke a hole in the glass of the museum "pen."

FIFI QUICKER

Tony, the garter snake, and Tiny, the lizard, were returned to custody shortly after the breakout. But Fifi was quicker in finding a hide-out.

The museum people claim she will be missed by more than them. They say Fifi was a favorite of hundreds of school children who visit the museum regularly.

The brown snake, found only in southern British Columbia, would wind itself around their arms, and tickle their noses with her tongue.

"She was a pet," said Claude Briggs, museum caretaker. "She taught many children that she was worthy of affection."

So keep an eye open for Fifi. And don't shudder be alarmed at her lean and hungry look.

MacMillan, Bloedel Top Post for Clyne

Appointment of former B.C. Supreme Court justice J. V. Clyne as chairman of the board of MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd. will be announced shortly, the Times learned reliably.

Mr. Clyne resigned from the Supreme Court at the end of the year and said only that he was going into commercial activity in the province, not private law practice.

His resignation followed closely that of Gordon Sloan as Chief Justice of the B.C. Court of Appeal to become forests adviser to the provincial government.

Mr. Clyne will move into the position formerly held by B. M. Hoffmeister, who resigned as board chairman three weeks ago.

Final approval is expected to be given by the company's annual meeting this week.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Will you please give me the definition of the term "Indian summer," and what date it starts and finishes? A.H.S.

A. There are no specific dates; they vary from place to place. As close a definition as can be made is a period in the fall, usually a week or 10 days, when a cold snap has ended and summer again seems to have taken over the land. Origin was likely when Indians caught up on harvest activities neglected during the actual fall itself.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of local and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Is there a new baby in the house? If there is, I'm not far wrong when I say that those necessary little items for him can be terribly expensive. Mothers! Go on a shopping spree right now!

You can buy wool or corduroy infant's bonnets for as little as 98 cents. These lovable little hats are washable and come in pastel colors of pink, blue and white. They are cozy and warm for these cool days, so... get two or three for your own child or for a useful gift!

No baby's wardrobe is complete without a pair or two of baby-alls! For romping indoors or out, these corduroy garments are wonderful! The price is, too... $1.49 a pair!

An added feature to the cover-ups is the dome fasteners... makes for easier diaper changing. These coveralls come in a large variety of colors and sizes, so go and see them!

I noticed a baby boy the other day wearing a little knitted suit with matching hat, sweater and booties. Though he was much too young to tell me where he purchased this lovely suit, his mother was very helpful, and told me where she bought it! I found out just in time, 'cause the darling sets are selling at $2.45!

Goodness, there are so many specials to tell you about, that I'm just going to list them. Baby's brush and comb sets with stiff nylon bristles are 25 cents.

Then there are the useful diaper bags, lined with plastic and come in a large size to carry on a strap over your shoulder. They are a special at $3.35.

You know $1.95 will buy one of the precious little nylon or broadcloth frocks in the shop I visited. Washable and simple to wear, these dresses would be a cinch to keep clean... you won't have to iron them... so buy a couple!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'Think Young'—Marathon Will Help You Do So

A French proverb says: "Forty is the age of youth; fifty is the youth of age."

Yet many women of 40 and 50 are so age-conscious that it damages their personalities and happiness dramatically. The persistent ever-present thought that one is deteriorating rather than improving, becoming less attractive rather than more so, has a tremendous effect on health as well as appearance. Such a dreary attitude influences our entire bodily setup, from our heart beat and respiration to our glands and digestion. It even dictates the posture and mannerisms of many women.

I believe that you can literally think yourself into premature aging or prolong the youthful portion of your life almost magically if you will not think in terms of years. Without realizing it, you may have adopted the outlook and postures and mannerisms of older age because you think you are expected to "act your age."

Individuals are as different as fingerprints. To settle down into ruts of boredom simply because many women of your age do so is sad indeed. It is especially sad in view of the new information about nutrition, weight control, the effects of exercise, and psychosomatic medicine.

A woman is old at any age if she thinks of herself as old and she is young at any age if she has a youthful, uninhibited spirit and viewpoint. Most women are greatly affected by their appearance. Nothing can make such a change in their viewpoint or add such zest to life as physical self-improvement.

So, if you have been taking yourself for granted, you have been doing yourself an injustice. As most of my readers know, I offer my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon each year at this time. Some may wish to improve their complexion or posture. Whatever your problem may be, in eight weeks of regular effort you can make a big dent in it.

So, why not join the gang? My marathon booklet gives you a weight and height chart, corrective exercises for the most usual figure faults and suggestions about skin care.

If you would like to join marathon, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

90 Different Bird Species Counted Here

A total of 19,396 birds representing 90 different species were counted by members of the Victoria Natural History Society in the annual Christmas bird census of Victoria and Saanich Peninsula.

Sixteen members took part in the bird count. The census was part of a North America-wide census conducted in the same week each year.

The bird count will be sent to Ottawa for correlation and study.

The bird watchers spotted some rare visitors to the city. These included a Lewis woodpecker, usually seen in the Okanagan Valley and Stellar's jays, not normally found here at any time of the year.

CHRISTMAS SEASON HERE FOR UKRAINIANS

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Christmas season starts tonight for most of the 400,000 Ukrainians across Canada.

A majority of the persons of Ukrainian descent observe the festival by the Julian calendar, according to which Christmas comes 13 days later than on the Gregorian calendar in general use.

Christmas Eve is known as Holy Night in the Ukrainian observance and is the most solemn part of the season, which lasts 14 days.

The season ends Jan. 19 with the feast of Jordan, sometimes called Little Christmas.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 25-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Phil Harmon, aged eight, of Richmond, Va., for his question:

How Long Ago Did the Dinosaurs Live?

Let's go back and say good-bye to the last of the dinosaurs. We must put the clock back sixty-million years. The last of the big fellows was very uncomfortable. For the weather was changing. The last of his warm, wet swamps was dry and cold. The big fellow was a lizard. The cold was too much for him and he was too big to hide himself in a cosy burrow.

What's more, a lot of ratty little animals were around. They dug out the dinosaur eggs and ate them before they could hatch. The last of the dinosaurs was a very unhappy fellow. Everything went wrong for him. And sixty-million years ago, he said goodbye to the unfriendly world.

Dinosaurs were big lizards. And lizards were reptiles. When the dinosaurs lived, most of the animals in the world were reptiles. They appeared in all shapes and sizes. We call this long reign the Age of Reptiles. And the Age of Reptiles lasted about 120 million years. All that time the world was warm. There were plenty of marshy lakes and shallow waters along the shores. Things were just right for reptiles.

The long reign began about 180 million years ago. At first the lizards were fairly small. But they grew and grew. Soon, some of them were six feet, then 20 feet long. One fellow looked like an ostrich. He ran on his strong, back legs. He had a long neck and a small head. His tail was a lizard tail and of course he had scales instead of feathers.

Some of the smaller lizards did not survive. Others grew still bigger as time went by. One big fellow was 70 feet long and weighed 36 tons. He was as big as a small house and tall enough to look over the roof. This whopper was Brontosaurus, the Thunder Lizard. He enjoyed life in swamps and he fed on water weeds.

Years before the human family came to live in the world.

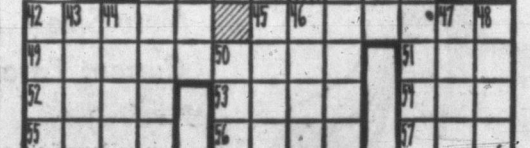

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Roger Timm, age 10, of Boise, Idaho, for his question: Why do the stars shine just at night?

One fine afternoon a man fell down a deep well. It was dry down there, but he was sure he could never climb up those steep sides. He called and called for help, but no one came. When all seemed lost, the prisoner looked up, up to the top of the well. Though it was day time, he saw the stars in the sky. Of course, friends finally came and pulled him out or we would never have heard his story.

So, it seems that the stars are up there in the sky—day and night. When the sun shines, it fills the whole sky with dazzling radiance. The faraway stars are out there. Their tiny, twinkling lights are lost in the radiant glory of our sunshine.

When Old Sol sets, we are turned away from his sparkling rays. The faraway stars have the sky to themselves. They waste no time at all. Out they pop, right after the sun and his glory disappear from the sky.

The man in the well was able to see the stars because the tunnel above him shut off some of the sunshine in the sky.

ARTHUR FIEDLER

Rock 'n' Roll Scores With Pops Conductor

MONTREAL (CP)—Arthur Fiedler, for 29 years conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, blandly says, "I like rock and roll."

And he believes many symphonies are not good music. Some of them are "terribly boring."

Mr. Fiedler, recently in Montreal to conduct the CBC orchestra, last year conducted about 200 concerts throughout the world. His pops orchestra plays each summer with mostly the same members as the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which plays during the winter.

The pops orchestra plays everything from boogie-woogie to serious music. Mr. Fiedler says he believes it has contributed greatly to interest in music in the United States by offering certain types of music to people who normally shy away from it.

Although rock and roll is overdone to some extent, it is nevertheless an "expression of America," he says. As well, it is a phase, through which the United States is passing.

"People worry about us getting depraved musical tastes. Nonsense."

Mr. Fiedler says rock and roll "will have its vogue and then die a natural death. It doesn't create teenage problems."

'LIGHT WILL COME' Illuminated Text Given by U.K. Vicar

LONDON (UP)—A firebug used a leftover Christmas candle to set fire to the second floor of St. Mark's Church Sunday night and then presumably joined the congregation below to sing and pray.

The fire was discovered by a member of the choir halfway through the service and extinguished by the church warden. No one was hurt.

The Rev. Wallace E. Bird had just finished reading the first lesson, a text of Isaiah: "Arise, shine, for the light will come," when he was notified of the fire.

He finished the second lesson and the Creed and then told the congregation: "I'm afraid the church is on fire. Would you mind leaving quietly."

He then blessed the congregation as it filed out. Police said the fire was a "serious case of arson." They said the person who set it used a red Christmas candle to set the fire and then probably joined the congregation for the service.

It was the second fire in the church that day. Earlier the vicar discovered a small blaze in the vestry and put it out before it caused any damage.

East Germans Eye Global Plane Mart

BERLIN (Reuters)—East Germany is planning two fast medium-range transport planes for the international market, the East German news agency, ADN, reports.

The agency said one will be a four-engine turbo-prop plane carrying 48 to 72 passengers about 1,860 miles at 520 miles an hour.

YOUNG HEART KEEPS POET GOING AT 80

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (AP)—Poet Carl Sandburg today observed his 80th birthday anniversary amid not-too-serious thoughts on the nature of life and death.

"Age is all relative," he said. "I've got a younger heart than most of the poets. Three-fourths of the poets we have nowadays were born old."

He predicted waggishly that he will live to be 88 years old, maybe 99.

"It's inevitable, it's inexorable, it's written in the book of fate that I die at an age divisible by 11." He pointed out that two of his great-grandfathers and one of his grandfathers died at ages divisible by 11.

"I'll probably die propped up in bed trying to write a poem about America," he remarked.

Margaret Confined To Room With Cold

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Margaret today was confined to her room with a bad cold at the royal mansion at Sandringham, Norfolk.

The princess had been staying at Sandringham with Queen Elizabeth and the royal family over Christmas. She was due to return with them today by train to London.

Rome Hails Soprano Substitute for Callas

ROME (AP)—Soprano Anita Cerquetti has been invited to appear again next Saturday in the lead role of the opera Norma, which she sang to wild applause Saturday night as a substitute for Maria Callas.

The invitation by the Rome Opera management Sunday night increased doubt that the American-born Miss Callas will get the chance to make up to Rome opera-goers for walking out during the opening night performance last Thursday.

Miss Cerquetti, 26, took over the role at a repeat opening Saturday night. She also sang the Norma role in Naples Sunday night and won new plaudits.

Miss Callas refused to come back to the stage after the first act of Thursday's opening although Italy's President Giovanni Gronchi was in the audience of 3,000. She said her voice had failed. Doctors said she was suffering from bronchitis and a 102-degree temperature.

Many Italian critics blamed her act on a fit of temper because a few persons in the upper galleries booed her singing.

Miss Callas' husband, multi-millionaire Giovanni Battista Meneghini, told reporters his wife is eager to sing for the Romans as soon as she recovers her voice.

Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella commented after Saturday's performance: "Miss Cerquetti sang very well, but she would have been cheered even

REAL ESTATE
By Don Whyte
WINTER TIME
TIPS
Your house can be sold in the winter time. I have always found the real estate market active during the winter months. This is substantiated by Multiple Listing Sales of nearly 1400,000.00 worth of properties during the month of January last year.
Generally, winter time buyers are more anxious to get in a home, and occupancy becomes more vital to them. If you can give an earlier occupancy than what is usual, you stand to receive a better price.
During the colder months the buyer is more conscious of fuel bills. It is a good idea to have accurate picture of what your annual fuel costs are. More attention is paid to the heating plant by purchasers. Have your furnace checked, make certain it is in good running order. Look on the front of furnace or on the pipes through faulty all combustion will cause doubt in the mind of purchasers.
Have your gutters cleaned out, don't let water be running down your walls from a clogged down-pipe. A discolored wall tells the buyer the tale.
There is charm in Victoria even in the winter, remember quite a few of the buyers will be from colder parts of Canada, and even the green lawns will look good to them. Keep your garden and lawn looking as neat as possible.

Pioneer British Plane Builder, Flier, Verdon-Roe, Dies at 80

PORTSMOUTH, Eng. (Reuters)—Sir Elliott Verdon-Roe, 80-year-old founder of A. V. Roe Ltd., and later president of Saunders-Roe Ltd., died in hospital here Saturday. It was learned Sunday night.
He was the first Englishman to fly a heavier-than-air machine over British soil.
The colorful air pioneer was educated as a civil engineer and went to British Columbia for a year at the age of 14 to learn surveying.
Later he spent two years as a marine engineer. While at sea he became fascinated by the flight of the Albatross and started experimenting with gliders.
Then by way of the motor industry, he began flying experiments with a machine fitted with a nine-horsepower motorcycle engine.

Onlookers nicknamed his plane "the coffee stall," because it looked like one.
"We crashed or set on fire every time we set out," Verdon-Roe later recalled, "and a mechanic on a bicycle used sometimes to chase after me with a fire extinguisher."
He carried on with his experiments until the local authority brought a suit against him for "engaging in a dangerous pursuit."
But before the case came before the court, Verdon-Roe fled the Channel and the proceedings were dropped.
He founded A. V. Roe and Co. Ltd., with his brother, in 1910, and started building Avro airplanes. In 1912 he produced the world's first enclosed airplane.
Two of his four sons were killed in air operations in the Second World War.
The Avro 5-4, widely used during the First World War, was the predecessor of the Lancaster and Lincoln bombers.
The company more recently developed the Vulcan delta-wing jet bomber and other supersonic aircraft.

Plans are under way to hold a "super-duper" spring garden festival in May to mark British Columbia's centennial year, George Wiggan, secretary of the Victoria Horticultural Society, said today.
The society, sponsors of the festival, will have between 35 and 40 of the most attractive gardens thrown open for public inspection on May 7, 8, 9 and 10. Several hundred visitors from the United States are expected.
Festival committee chairman is Thomas Sawyer.
Meanwhile, the society has started a novel plan to create a year-round interest in gardening. Each month it will choose a "garden of the month" to point out the many common flowers which can be grown in all seasons of the year.
The society, in December, picked the garden of Mrs. W. E. Carey, 1288 Burnside West.
Flowers in her garden included Yellow Jasmine, Eriogon, Christmas Rose, Sweet Violets, African Kaffir, Lily, Gentiana aculis, Iceland poppy, jet bomber and other supersonic aircraft.

Gov't Hospital Policy Under Fire in Kitimat

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP)—The Kitimat General Hospital Society says the provincial government has discriminated against Kitimat in declining to cover possible deficits from operation of a proposed hospital here.
The statement came after the government said the society, the municipal council and the Aluminum Company of Canada must guarantee that no financial demands will be made on the B.C. Hospital Insurance of the government to cover any possible operating deficits of the proposed $3,700,000 hospital.
The government's stand was outlined at a special hospital society meeting, called after the government told the council not to sell debentures totalling $2,280,000. Kitimat ratepayers approved a hospital by-law in that amount by a 575-22 vote Nov. 16.
Reeve Wilbur Hallman said council has made no commitments to sell the debentures. A Vancouver firm handling them is awaiting approval before going ahead.
The government's action prevents the hospital society from calling tenders for the project, a spokesman said. Construction was originally scheduled to start in the spring and was expected to provide 250 jobs.
Unless the government relents before the Legislature sits Jan. 23, the hospital society fears work on the project will be delayed a year. The province's grants of $1,293,133 would not apply in 1958 unless they are included in the budget.

Union Official, Ex-LPP Member, Speaks Jan. 13
A former Labor Progressive Party member and present business agent for the boiler-makers' union in Vancouver, Sam Jenkins, who was "converted to Christ" in 1951, will speak here Monday, Jan. 13, at 6.30 p.m. in Glad Tidings Tabernacle.

Mr. Jenkins, 40, has had a colorful career as a logger, shipyard worker, prizefighter and mission worker.
His message, sponsored by the men's fellowship group of the tabernacle, is expected to deal with labor-management relations from the Christian viewpoint.

'Super' Garden Festival in May For Centenary

Hoffa, 2 Others Face Retrial Next Month

NEW YORK (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president-elect of the Teamsters' Union, and two co-defendants were ordered today to be ready for a retrial February 20 on charges of wiretap conspiracy.
The first trial ended December 20 in a jury deadlock.
Federal Judge Archie O. Dawson set the new date over objections of Sol Gelb, Hoffa's lawyer, who said "I can't possibly be ready by then."
The case is set for February 3, when you will be ready for trial," Judge Dawson said.
Hoffa and his co-defendants are accused of conspiring here to tap illegally teamsters' union office phones in Detroit. Their purpose allegedly was to eavesdrop on union subordinates who might be called to testify before investigating groups.
Hoffa's co-defendants are Bernard Brennan, president of Teamsters' Local 337, in Detroit, and Bernard Spindel, a professional wiretapper.
They were on trial for 18 days before a jury of seven men and five women announced a deadlock, 11 to 1, for conviction. The defendants were released in $2,500 bail each.

LeBel Keeps Crown With 16-Keg Jump

GOSSINGER, N.Y. (AP)—Leo LeBel of Hartford, Conn., today won the world barrel-jumping-on-ice champion ship for the fourth straight year by a close margin over former titleholder Terry Browne of Detroit.
LeBel, 27, cleared 16 barrels for a distance of 27 feet 10 1/2 inches. Browne, a 38-year-old fireman who held the crown from 1951 through 1954, also cleared 16 barrels but his distance was 25-7.

Bucs Sign Shortstop From Edmonton Club

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates have announced the signing of Edward C. Sanda, a 19-year-old shortstop from San Diego, Calif., to a 1958 contract with the Pirates' Columbus farm team of the International League.
He batted 327 last summer while playing for Edmonton of the Western Canadian Baseball League.

Macmillan Pact Move Favored by Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated again today he strongly favors reopening of East-West negotiations.

Talking with reporters after a two and one-half-hour cabinet meeting, the prime minister said British Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for an East-West non-aggression pact represents a "forward-looking view."

Mr. Macmillan, he added, has shown repeatedly a desire to bring about an alleviation of world tensions.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that on the basis of past experience a non-aggression pact might not achieve everything intended but it would bring the major Western nations together in consultation with Russia. This in itself would be of "material advantage."

The prime minister said uncertainties and difficulties among individuals can be dissipated by discussion. The same could apply to nations.

Solutions would never be reached unless there was discussion.

NEW YEAR GREETING

Mr. Diefenbaker at the same time disclosed that he received a new year's greeting Dec. 31 from President Voroshilov, Communist party secretary Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin of Russia.

He did not receive it immediately because he was holidaying in the Bahamas. However, he planned to reply to the greeting later today.

In London, the foreign office said today that Prime Minister Macmillan's suggested non-aggression pact with Russia was not intended as an isolated offer but as a "complement" to wider international agreements.

This statement was offered as an interpretation rather than as a correction of the prime minister's suggestion in a broadcast Saturday that Britain would be ready to seek a non-aggression pact with the Soviet Union in the interest of easing international tensions.

World reaction to Macmillan's suggestion for an East-West non-aggression pact remained cautious.

Several western countries voiced general support but did not commit themselves strongly to the suggestion. Others, notably the United States, were cool.

The U.S. issued an official "no comment" statement. Two years ago, however, Russia suggested to the U.S. a similar pact and the U.S. rejected it.

India's Prime Minister Nehru, who has been seeking such a move for a long time, greeted it with approval.

At Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said he had received a good impression of Macmillan's idea. But a later report said the West German government has decided to go more slowly in view of the lack of U.S. support.

French officials said there would be no official comment until the suggestion has been discussed in the NATO permanent council.

Russ Challenge West to Follow Cut in Forces

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced tonight a 300,000-man reduction in its armed forces in 1958 and challenged the Western powers to do likewise.

At the same time, Deputy Foreign Minister V. V. Kuznetsov told a press conference the Kremlin is considering "positively" Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for a non-aggression pact between East and West.

Kuznetsov said the reduction in Soviet military manpower will begin immediately and be completed this year.

The reduction, he added, is being made in compliance with the directives of the last Supreme Soviet parliament and the 300,000-man cut will include the army, navy and air force.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Almighty God, who by the birth of Thy Son hast given us a great light, grant that our souls may be searched by that light this Advent Sunday. Soften and fill our hearts with love and gratitude, with tenderness and peace. Consecrate our joy and mirth and let them be directed to the glory of Thy Son, whom we would serve with all our hearts; in Jesus' name. Amen.

And, Rickover said, he is "very much worried that it is almost too late to match the achievements of the Soviet Union" in the general missile field. Russia is reported to have missile-firing subs.

Rickover, who guided the development of atomic undersea craft, said he had not proposed originally that nuclear submarines be equipped to fire ballistic missiles.

But two years ago, he said, he became convinced that such a project would be feasible and recommended it be started.

Previously, Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Wash.), a member of the Senate armed services committee, told reporters the United States hasn't got any missile-firing submarines under construction now.

Fuchs Rejects Hillary Plea To Abandon Trip

LONDON (Reuters)—British explorer Vivian Fuchs today curtly rejected a suggestion from Sir Edmund Hillary that he give up his struggle to reach the South Pole now.

Dr. Fuchs, attempting the first successful land crossing of the Antarctic continent, also turned down an offer by Hillary to join the Fuchs party at a point 700 miles from the coast.

Hillary suggested Fuchs abandon attempts to complete the crossing now because he feels deteriorating weather will make the expedition risky. But Fuchs said his party will take its chances and "we will find our own way out."

Marshal of the RAF Sir John Slessor, chairman of the enterprise, has cabled Dr. Fuchs telling him: "We have full confidence in you and your judgment as leader of the expedition."

The original plan for the expedition—worked out more than a year ago—was for Dr. Fuchs and his party of explorers to make the first complete land crossing of the white continent.

Hillary, setting off from the other side, was to establish Depot 700—700 miles from the coast—and wait there until Fuchs reached him.

Instead, Hillary made a dash to the South Pole from Depot 700 and now has flown back to his original coastal starting point, leaving his vehicles behind.

He disclosed today that because of worsening weather he urged Fuchs—who is still more than 300 miles from the South Pole—to abandon the crossing once he reached the pole and resume it in the next summer season, toward the end of this year.

The message from Fuchs received at expedition headquarters here today read:

"Have received message from Hillary urging me to abandon journey at pole and return here next season to continue work."

"His grounds are deterioration of weather late in season. 'I am aware of this possibility which must be accepted.'

"Have informed him that there is no question of abandonment and return of party following season impracticable."

MANNED RUSS ROCKET LAUNCHING CLAIMED

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has launched an experimental rocket 180 miles into the atmosphere with a human aboard, reliable sources here said tonight.

The man aboard the rocket parachuted successfully to earth, these sources said.

There was no official Soviet announcement.

The successful experiment is reported to have taken place within a day or so after the New Year, the reports said.

WIFE BEATING UN-BRITISH

LONDON (AP)—A London court ruled once and for all Saturday that no Englishman has the right to beat his wife.

Herbert Bartlett, 48, was sentenced to jail after declaring his belief in a man's prerogative to "chastise" his better half.

Boat Lost With 5

MIAMI (UP)—The Coast Guard reported today that a 45-foot yawl with five New Yorkers aboard, including Harvey Conover, sportsman and yachting writer, is missing in storm-lashed waters south of here. Two 55-foot fishing boats with two crewmen each are also missing in the same general area.

Lower Food Prices As Living Costs Drop

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index at the start of December declined one-fifth of a point to 123.1 from 123.3 a month earlier, the bureau of statistics said today.

The drop in the index—which is based on 1949 prices equalling 100—was the second consecutive monthly decline in 1957. At the start of November, the index eased to 123.3 from a record

123.4 the previous month in the first drop in the index last year. The decrease at the start of December resulted from lower food prices. The food sub-index declined 1.4 per cent to 118.8 from 120.2, more than offsetting increase in other groups.

The index for average wages and salaries at Oct. 1—the latest figure available—was 160.3, on the basis of 1949 equalling 100. This compares with 148 at Jan. 1, 1957, and with the following average figures for the preceding years: 1956, 149.4; 1955, 141.7; 1954, 137.1; 1953, 133.4; 1952, 126.0; 1951, 115.5; 1950, 104.4; 1949, 100.

The index figure of 123.1 at the start of December represents an increase of 2.7 points compared with the same period in 1956. The decrease in the index between the start of October and the start of December amounted to 2.4 per cent.

Now that the Russians have got men flying in missiles, mebbe Mr. K will volunteer as a human warhead.

Two Others Hurt In Oak Bay Mishap

One man was electrocuted at 9.30 a.m. today and two suffered burns when the cable of a mobile crane working on a construction job in Oak Bay touched a 12,000-volt high tension cable.

Victim was Sigvard Gustafson, 51, of 1221 Johnson Street, father of six young children, who was guiding the sling of the crane toward a pile of lumber when the fatal contact was made.

Helping him were John Martins, 339 Simcoe, who was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital for treatment, and Kristian Naess, 3808 Carey Road, who was treated at the hospital and sent home.

The accident occurred at 1270 Beach Drive, where A. K. Smalley, 2706 Dorset, a contractor, is building a two-storey apartment. According to reports, the men were using the mobile crane to lift lumber from the street to the top floor of the apartment.

Owned by Victoria Van and Storage Ltd., and operated by Thomas W. Cox, 3590 Saanich Road, it was parked sideways between the curb and the building. Cox escaped injury.

Police said the building is on a curve, and that poles carrying the power line are at each end of the property. As a result, the power line cuts across the curve formed by the curb.

Const. Harold Bird and Const. Charles Bates of Oak Bay police attended the accident, and took Gustafson to Royal Jubilee Hospital in the police ambulance. He was dead on arrival at the hospital. Decision on an inquest will be announced by the Oak Bay police.

The victim, a native of Sweden and resident of Canada since 1929, had lived in Victoria for the past 15 years. He was a member of Swedish and Norwegian social clubs here, and was active in the Boy Scout movement.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and of the Carpenters and Joiners Brotherhood, and gave freely of his time on charity and public service projects undertaken by the union.

Surviving are the widow, Ruth; five sons, all under 15 years, and a daughter only two months old.

Hanna Fined For Intoxication, Admits 'Failure'

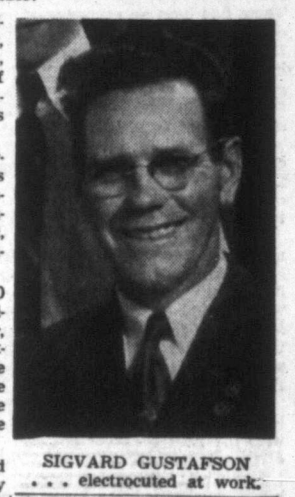

VANCOUVER (CP)—Christian George Hanna, Canada's most publicized immigrant in recent years, made another public appearance today when he appeared in court on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place early Sunday.

Hanna, 24, pleaded guilty to the charge, which resulted from a noisy party here, and was fined $10 or five days imprisonment.

An unidentified woman paid his fine.

Hanna was arrested on a similar charge here last summer, but skipped his bail.

While awaiting hearing of his charge Sunday, Hanna wrote a letter to Acting Immigration Minister David Fulton apologizing for his failure to succeed in Canada.

Aged Man First '58 Fatality

Greater Victoria's first traffic fatality of 1958 occurred in View Royal Sunday night.

William Hopkins, 76, of 263 Helmcken, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 11.30 p.m., two hours after he was in collision with a light truck at the corner of Helmcken and the Old Island Highway. Colwood RCMP said driver of the truck was Mrs. Joan Edith Ridley, 3260 Metcousin.

Details of the accident are still under RCMP investigation. Mrs. Ridley apparently was travelling toward Victoria on the highway when her car was in collision with the pedestrian. It is understood he was on his way to mail a letter.

Mr. Hopkins, a former CNR repairman, came to Canada from Wales in 1913. He lived in Winnipeg prior to moving to Victoria in 1946.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Winnifred Macintosh, Victoria; one son, Leonard, New Westminster, and a sister in England.

A coroner's inquest into the fatality is likely, but no date has been set.

1,800 Flee Texas Storm, Rains Boost Flood Threat

DALLAS (AP)—A surge of destructive weather sent up to 1,800 persons fleeing their flooded homes in south Texas and stranded as many as 500 motorists in snow in west and northwest Texas Sunday night and today. Rains were still falling today posing new threats to flooded areas.

Worst hit from floods were the lower Rio Grande valley at the southern tip of Texas and areas around Corpus Christie, about 130 miles up the Gulf of Mexico coast.

The snows which stranded motorists fell from the Marfa area in Texas' Big Bend north for 300 miles or so into the Plainview area in the south plains, and on into New Mexico.

The turbulent weather sent waves crashing into Padre Island, a long, low island that runs for 120 miles along the Texas coast. Eight persons were stranded overnight on the island. Navy helicopters evacuated them from Padre today.

At mid-morning, water was not receding perceptibly in the lower Rio Grande valley city of Edinburg, which was worst hit by the high water.

Five hundred persons were taken from their flooded homes at Bishop and 500 at Robstown, in the Corpus Christi area Sunday.

The water spread over 71 blocks in Edinburg, mostly in residential sections of small, wooden houses built close to the ground. Water there was more than knee deep.

Defence Budget Okayed After More Criticism

(From Times News Services)

Canada's $1,723,000,000 defence budget for the current fiscal year ending next March 31 has been approved by the Commons.

However, approval came Saturday only after another round of criticisms directed against what Lester B. Pearson described as "a very shaky basis" for the establishment of NORAD.

NORAD is the joint North American Air Defence Command, set up at Colorado Springs, Colo., six months ago with an American commander and a Canadian deputy.

Mr. Pearson, former Liberal external affairs minister, criticized the fact that this command, unlike other commands within NATO, was established without a prior formal agreement being negotiated between Canada and the United States.

The formal agreement, necessary to maintain civilian government authority over the military, was needed to set out NORAD's operational principles and its relationship with the Canadian and U.S. governments.

He said the oral agreements between Canada and the U.S. for the establishment of NORAD were "a very shaky basis" on which an American commander could order Canadian planes in Canada into action.

Exchange of Draft Agreements

Defence Minister Pearkes replied that he too believes the civilian authority must be maintained over the military. There had been an exchange of draft agreements, based on oral agreements, and as soon as they had been approved by the two governments, Canada would submit the formal text for parliamentary approval.

He said that, in effect, political authority is established by the fact that the chiefs of staff of both countries must account to government ministers.

Mr. Pearkes said NORAD makes possible a defence of North America that would not have been possible otherwise. There would be no time to call Parliament for approval to send up defenders when enemy planes were over Canadian territory.

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, said no one quarrels with the need for joint defence of Canada and the U.S.

But it was only proper that it be established on the basis of political agreement. Civilian authority over the military must be maintained.

During the defence debate, Mr. Pearkes made these other points:

1. The militia's new civil defence role does not mean it will take over civil defence from provincial and municipal authorities, but would better prepare it as "an aid to the civil power."

2. The RCAF is considering the advisability of replacing its old Canso aircraft for search and rescue operations, but no decision has been reached.

3. The $1,000,000 available for defence research grants in universities this year will not be reduced next fiscal year.

The federal government spent $89,640,000 up to Oct. 31 on development of the CF-105 supersonic jet interceptor and is committed to support its development only until next Oct. 1, Defence Minister Pearkes said Saturday.

He said the total cost of the project, undertaken by Avro Aircraft Ltd., will depend on "the number of aircraft, if any, which are ordered."

Replying to CCF questioners, Mr. Pearkes said the delta-winged interceptor is designed to meet high-altitude manned bombers. Russia had a considerable number of such bombers, and while that condition existed it was necessary to have aircraft capable of meeting them.

Gen. Gavin Spurs Pentagon Shakeup

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spectacular one-man revolt by Lieut.-Gen. James M. Gavin has spurred demands for a shakeup in the United States military high command.

Gavin, chief of the army's research and development program, told a reporter he is sticking by his announced intention to retire from the army March 31.

"I won't compromise my principle and I won't go along with the Pentagon system," Gavin said.

Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.) said Gavin's stand emphasizes a need for Congress to consider overhauling the present military setup.

Gavin said Saturday night that "I haven't been able to get much done, the system being what it is. Without elaborating on this, he said he is 'not doing any good' inside the army 'so I'll take a cut at it on the outside.'"

Several subcommittee members asked that the group look into reports that Gavin was threatened, with transfer to some obscure post unless he changed some of his views on the missiles program.

"He does not wish to accompany us from pole but offers to join us at Depot 700. He states his agreement with his mechanic's views that continuation of journey late in the season is unjustifiable risk."

"I do not agree but have informed him that I do not feel able to ask him to join us at Depot 700 to use his local knowledge, Fuchs."

Slessors' message to Fuchs, sent on behalf of the London committee of management of the expedition, read: "Committee have considered your telegram and Hillary's. We have full confidence in you and your judgment as leader of the expedition."

"We support your decision and any other you may make."

"Best wishes and congratulations on present progress."

The extent of the disagreement between the two explorers is shown by the text of Hillary's telegram to London headquarters suggesting that Fuchs abandon his attempt.

SAVE FACE

He told the London organizers: "Your instructions are the only thing that can enable Fuchs to save face and adopt a modified plan."

The telegram said Fuchs had asked that one of Hillary's mechanics stay at the south pole to accompany him to Scott Base—the New Zealand headquarters on the Antarctic coast.

It added: "Neither of my men, who have done an outstanding job, is prepared to take on this job which they regard as extremely foolhardy at this time of the year."

He said: "Fuchs does not realize that his delayed progress is causing considerable concern not only to ourselves but also to the Americans."

"They accept the fact it will be their job, whether they are asked or not, to initiate rescue action and that therefore both naval and air forces will be tied up here awaiting Fuchs' safe arrival."

3 Juveniles Held in Ottawa Rash of Fires

OTTAWA (CP)—Two brothers and their sister—all juveniles—today were charged by police with setting 10 fires in east-central Ottawa during a 20-hour period Sunday and a school fire Dec. 22.

The children, ranging in age between nine and 12, were arrested today following an intensive police and fire department investigation of the series of fires.

Police began a search for school-age children when partly-burned schoolbooks and paper were found under the verandah of an apartment house where fire was discovered Sunday.

The three will be held in custody until their court appearance.

Heaviest damage was suffered at Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church on Laurier Avenue East at Cumberland Street. Two fires were found 40 feet apart near entrances to the church basement. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Tories Still Study House Recess During Liberal Leadership Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today no arrangement has been made yet for recessing the Commons for all or part of the Jan. 14-16 sessions of the national Liberal leadership convention here.

Earlier, a spokesman at Liberal headquarters had said the House would stand adjourned Wednesday night, Jan. 15, and all day Thursday, Jan. 16—leadership balloting day.

Works Minister Howard Green, government floor leader in the Commons, also denied there has been any arrangement made.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Commons will be notified when consideration has been given to the question.

One high-placed government informant said it might seem reasonable that the House take Wednesday night and Thursday afternoon off.

Senate plans were not known. Senator J. T. Haig, government leader, was not in the capital. All Liberal members of both Houses are voting delegates at the convention.

Moon, Sun Battle Produces Spectacle

A schizophrenic sky Saturday was the setting for a 15-minute battle between moon and sun over Victoria.

Starting at 4.30 p.m. Victorians who were out and about saw a silvery full moon rise over Mount Baker as the sun sank below the Sooke hills in a brilliant multi-hued departure.

Golfers, playing the links at Oak Bay, had one of the best ringside seats for the double spectacle as they finished their games by simultaneous moonlight and sunlight.

The explanation? "It was nothing unusual," said Dr. R. M. Petrie of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. "The full moon during December and January is very high in the sky so that it rises before the sun sets."

"It follows, in winter, the same path north of the equator that the sun takes in July."

The next performance should be staged here towards the end of this month when the moon goes into its full phase again.

As for the brilliant sunset, weatherman Bill Mackie credited high-floating cirrus clouds that were present in the west.

U.S. Readies Big Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—A brawny Atlas intercontinental missile, mightiest so far prepared by the United States in reply to Russian rocket threats, was poised again today for firing some time this week.

Harsh winds lashing the cape and its great steel missile towers were expected to continue at least another day, however, and could delay the first test launchings of the new year.

Best guess for triggering of the blunt-nosed 90-foot Atlas was Wednesday, the day after Congress reconvenes to consider the staggering sums needed for bolstering the nation's defenses—in particular the guided missile development program.

Protection

...at your fingertips

Safety in the automobile is optional at no extra cost. No mechanical safety device can replace the protection of careful driving.

Last year, traffic accidents claimed the lives of more Canadians than ever before. Someone was injured every 8 minutes. A car was damaged every 48 seconds. Automobile insurance claims rose to more than $150,000,000.

One result of this is higher automobile insurance rates—because what is paid out in claims must be brought in by premiums. But even more important is the fact that you hold your life, and the lives of others, in your hands when you get behind the wheel of a car.

Safety pays dividends... saves lives, helps to lower your insurance costs. Be Careful.

The Little Blue Air Forms

MARGARET looked at the little air forms lying on her desk beneath the pigeon-hole marked "Christmas-letters-to-be-answered."

Like little blue threads holding families together, she thought. Multiplied a million-fold, they bind up the Commonwealth. They're so familiar and so human and so like families, she thought, taking up the letter from old Aunt Mary who lived with her even older sister, Julia.

She herself was very well, Aunt Mary wrote, though Julia was having a little trouble with her asthma and seemed to be showing her age at last. But the asthma had been better after the visit to Edith in the summer. Such a pleasant visit it had been, and they'd taken dear little Spot with them.

Margaret picked up Aunt Julia's letter next.

She herself was very well, Aunt Julia wrote, but Mary wasn't as well as she might be, and seemed to be showing her age at last. But she'd seemed better after a visit to Edith in the summer. They'd taken little Spot with them, and Spot had had a wonderful time.

Have a Happy Christmas, Edith wrote to Margaret. And Margaret would probably hear from Julia and Mary. Getting so old, the poor dears, and still looking after each other so devotedly. Though, of course, they had their little spats from time to time! They'd brought Spot with them in the summer, and Spot was even fatter and more spoiled than his predecessor, Smut. If such a thing were possible!

Ruth

Peter had been in France for the summer, wrote another cousin. He'd gone with a friend from school, and the two of them had cycled everywhere, and stayed at Youth Hostels. Their funds were running low towards the end, and privately Peter's mother thought they hadn't eaten much for the last two days.

May had married, Dorothea wrote. Such a nice young man, but no job at all so far as she could see. May would manage, though. She'd always been so capable. And old Hetty Higginson had married. Sixty if she was a day, my dear, and no one in the village knew anything about it.

How solid and familiar it all is, thought Margaret, skimming a letter about an older son who'd been so tiresome in school and never worked at all. The younger boy was just as sweet and easy as he'd always been, she read, and wasn't it queer that in one family, two brothers could be so different.

Births, marriages, deaths, the young growing up, the old needing attention—all were there in the little blue air forms.

It's the central core of life, reflected Margaret, and let her mind wander among the branches of the family—Rosemund who was so gay and difficult, to solve Bridget working diligently and being rather dull, to Michael winning his scholarship, to Peter holidaying in France, and to poor Susette producing a fourth baby boy when all she wanted was a daughter.

Yes, those are the little blue air forms. They've been reaching Victoria by the score this Christmas. They've come from almost every city and county in Britain.

And, unless I'm very much mistaken, this is the sort of gossip family news they have been bringing.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Skyscraper 'Too Urban'

LONDON—The many times I've been in the region of Buckingham Palace I've noticed that it isn't possible to get a good look inside its huge grounds. On foot, of course, it is out of the question because of the high brick wall—surmounted by spikes—which surrounds the whole property.

From the top of a bus passing by you can look over the wall but even in winter, with the trees bare, you can't glimpse much more than some lawns at the far end of the grounds from the palace, a couple of tennis courts and a pond—and, let alone seeing the Queen, Philip or the Royal children, just nobody ever seems to be around in that part of the property.

From adjoining buildings, nowhere that I know of can anyone get a full view into what amounts to the palace's back garden.

That's as it should be, because the least thing the Royal family should have is some privacy.

But the London County Council is now worried that this traditional Royal privacy is likely to be invaded. The U.S. Hilton Hotels, linking up with English financiers, want to put up a super skyscraper hotel on Park Lane. At the public inquiry now going on, at which the LCC and the hotel promoters are debating the project, one of the objections put forward by the LCC is that anyone on the roof of the building, armed with strong binoculars, could get a good peek at such things as Prince Philip teaching son Charles cricket on the back lawn.

Worse than that, say the LCC, it would be an invitation for news photographers with telephoto lenses on their cameras to take intimate shots of the Royal family.

All right, say the hotel men, we'll change the plans of the building so that from nowhere in it will be possible to get a birds-eye view of what's going on behind the palace.

But this isn't the LCC's main objection to the proposed hotel, on which already $2-million has been sent at the site about 50 yards down Park Lane from the famous Dorchester Hotel. Only too glad to have a lavish new hotel for London, the LCC balks at the idea of it being 34 stories high.

Park Lane, with buildings none of which are more than 10 stories on one side and the wide vista of Hyde Park on the other, is regarded by the LCC as a city setting which has "a unique rural and pastoral nature." The hoteliers say that on the small site available, they can't do anything but go up high to make the hotel economic.

If it does get itself built, the hotel will be London's tallest building—eight feet more than the city's present highest 370-foot St. Paul's, and much taller than any other hotel or office building.

Present runners-up to St. Paul's: Victoria Tower of Houses of Parliament (340), Big Ben (320), St. Pancras Hotel tower (270), London University (210), Shell Mex House (190).

Talks Open On U.S. Bases In France

Oil Imports Curbs Political Says Times

LONDON (CP)—The Times says the decision by the United States to cut oil imports from Canada by 15 per cent reflects that "enduring dichotomy" of American trade policy.

In an editorial reviewing "restrictive forces" within the U.S. oil industry, The Times says the latest decision had "naturally caused angry outbursts from across the border."

"Canadian ministers rule out—in public at least—the suggestion that the United States is retaliating for the Canadian government's proposal to divert 15 per cent of Canadian-United States trade to Britain.

"The odd thing is that the new restriction is probably rightly regarded as a step in the president's policy of getting still further powers under a renewed Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act to advance the cause of freer trade.

"It reflects thus the enduring dichotomy for multilateral free trade against which other countries' policies are invariably measured and judged and the concessions made when politically powerful interests at home are liable to be hurt."

PARIS (AP)—Exploratory discussions have opened in Washington for the location of intermediate range ballistic missile bases in France, a government spokesman said today.

State Secretary Dulles and Ambassador Herve Alphand are engaged in talks but these cannot yet be called negotiations, the spokesman said. The purpose is to find an agreed basis for more formal dealing.

Specifically, he said, Dulles and Alphand have taken up the conditions for the use of the new weapons, technical aspects of their installation and financing of the launching sites.

It is understood France wants veto power over firing of atomic-powered weapons and actual control of at least some of the atomic weapons to be stored in France. Moreover, NATO circles said, France wants the United States to pay the bill for installation.

War Artist Dies

LONDON (AP)—Barnett Freedman, British artist and illustrator, died Saturday. He was 56. Freedman was an official war artist, working among bombs and machine-gun fire to depict scenes of the Dunkirk evacuation and the D-Day landings.

Leader Rotation Scored by Martin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hon. Paul Martin flew into Vancouver Sunday to seek support of his contest this month for Liberal party leadership and carefully side-stepped questions about his chances.

His only comment on the leadership race was a sharp criticism of the party's tradition of rotation between French and English-speaking leaders.

He said he feels "very strongly" that there is no valid reason for such a policy and it should be dropped.

"I feel the only consideration before a national Liberal convention should be which candidate is qualified best," the bilingual former health minister from Windsor, Ont., told a press conference.

Martin and Pearson are front-running contestants in the leadership battle at the Jan. 14-15 party convention in Ottawa.

Turning to politics in general Martin criticized government policy in the fields of trade and unemployment and said these will cause deterioration of the economy and result in "a very serious mess."

He said he does not blame the government for unemployment caused by world conditions, but he blames Prime Minister Diefenbaker for failing to solve the problem after promising he would do so. He said Diefenbaker made such a promise in Windsor where there were 9,000 jobless.

The prime minister said he "would correct the situation."

This was "the same kind of language used by Lord Bennett," Martin said.

HON. PAUL MARTIN

He said Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal for a 15 per cent switch in Canada's trade from the U.S. to Britain also was along the line of policy followed by the former Conservative prime minister and would antagonize Canada's best customer.

The trade switch scheme also will worsen the unemployment situation, said Martin, and the recent 15 per cent curtailment of U.S. oil imports from Canada looked very much like a retaliatory measure.

The former minister said Liberals should not try to defeat the government in parliament until it has had a chance to implement its election promises.

When the next election comes the Liberals have a "reasonable expectation" of success, he said.

4,000 Homeless In Iraq Floods

BAGHDAD (AP)—Continuing thunderstorms were forecast throughout Iraq today following torrential weekend rains which left 4,000 people homeless in the northeast.

Ten persons were believed buried under the ruins of their houses.

REDS WINNING IN FAR EAST, MLA FINDS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Tom Bate, Social Credit member of the B.C. Legislature for Vancouver East, returned Sunday from a two-month tour of India, Pakistan and Ceylon and said he believes Communism is winning the battle for men's minds in the east.

Only western help, under such schemes as the Colombo Plan, so far has prevented Communist victory in south-east Asia, he said in an interview.

Mr. Bate, who represented Alberta and B.C. at British Commonwealth Parliamentary Association conference in the three countries, said he is convinced Canada's contribution to the Colombo Plan must be continued.

"If the west doesn't continue assistance to these Asian nations, then they will swing to the Russian side," he said.

Queen May Visit India, Pakistan

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth is reported considering a visit to India and Pakistan—possibly next December.

The Sunday Empire News said both the Queen and Prime Minister Macmillan feel a royal trip to India will help Britain strengthen its Commonwealth ties with that country. A trip to Pakistan, the paper added, might help heal the breach between India and Pakistan on the Kashmir issue.

The paper said Macmillan will sound out India on the idea of the royal visit when he flies there this week on his Commonwealth tour.

Toronto Holds Gains 'Hot' Development In Moderate Trading

Although making no further upward motion, the Toronto stock market held steady today.

Base metals were more than three-quarters of a point higher on index and industrials were up one-half point. Western oils and golds had smaller index gains.

Steels and some aircrafts kept fractional gains but the New York market as a whole was mixed in quiet trading. Gains and losses among key stocks ran from fractions to about a point.

AT TORONTO pipelines and banks featured industrial winners although Loblain Inc. and Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, on a few sales each, had the biggest gains, each up five points. Trans Mountain Pipeline was up a point to 60 and Bank of Montreal gained 1 1/4 points at 40. Other gains and most losses were generally fractional.

Senior base metals had an edge of three-to-one on the upside with most high-priced

NEW YORK (AP)—Members of the continent's largest organization of retail merchants got a first-hand report today on what has been called the hottest development in the field of advertising.

The opening session of the 47th annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association was devoted to a demonstration of run-of-paper (ROP) color advertising in newspapers.

About 5,000 retailers from all parts of the country and a 52-man Canadian delegation were on hand for the convention, which continues through Thursday.

A survey of 2,000 stores showed that (ROP) color now is available to 60 per cent of

TODAY'S GRAIN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—Weaknesses on United States markets were reflected generally in trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Dealings were dull in oats, barley and rye, but fairly active in flax. October contracts were authorized for trading.

Prices of flax were irregular and showed hesitation under commission house selling and hedges. A few buying orders for American cargoes appeared on recessions.

Oats and barley had a few routine domestic feed orders, and prices moved narrowly. Rye sold off with the U.S. trade. Support was thin and prices declined.

There were no reports of overseas business, but some inquiry for flax was reported.

Weekend loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 435,000 bushels, India 445,000, Belgium 260,000, West Germany 40,000 and The Netherlands 20,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, TWA and domestic wheat were up three-eighths cent from Friday.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO (AP)—General selling pushed soybean and grain futures lower on the board of trade today.

Lack of export demand and favorable weather and crop news accounted for declines in wheat, with the deferred months down more than a cent a bushel on the outlook for a large crop in the southwest this year.

Action in wheat caused selling of other grains.

Soybeans were off better than a cent a bushel and rye retreated for losses up to nearly two cents. Profit-taking following last week's rally influenced selling of most grades.

NEW YORK (AP)—Members of the continent's largest organization of retail merchants got a first-hand report today on what has been called the hottest development in the field of advertising.

The opening session of the 47th annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association was devoted to a demonstration of run-of-paper (ROP) color advertising in newspapers.

About 5,000 retailers from all parts of the country and a 52-man Canadian delegation were on hand for the convention, which continues through Thursday.

A survey of 2,000 stores showed that (ROP) color now is available to 60 per cent of use it. Fifty-four per cent reported "fair" results, 38 per cent "good" and 8 per cent "poor."

SCHOOL BOARD TO NAME NEW CHAIRMAN

Four Inaugural Council Meetings Tonight

Greater Victoria residents will have their first opportunity tonight to see their 1958 municipal councils in action.

Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt all will hold their inaugural meetings. Highlights will be first-of-the-year speeches by reeves and mayor, and committee appointments.

The Greater Victoria School Board will also hold its first meeting of 1958 and a new chairman will be chosen to replace W. H. Golby, who retired from office last month. For Victoria residents, it is the only council meeting of the year which is regularly held in the evening. Council reverts to afternoon meetings at its next session. All other municipalities meet regularly at night.

Date of the first meeting is laid down in the Municipal Act.

All local councils will meet in their respective municipal halls, with the exception of Saanich, where the meeting will be in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall. Crowded conditions in the municipal hall have required use of council chamber for offices.

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1958 11

Baby Hurt in Crash; Police Car Cracks Up

A four-month-old baby girl was among four persons injured in weekend traffic accidents in Victoria.

Vicky Barge was a passenger in a car driven by Myron L. Barge, 23, 628 Cornwall, which was in collision with an auto driven by Joseph Watson, 819 Hillside, at Bay and Cook Saturday at 10:35 p.m.

The infant was treated for a nosebleed at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

The father received a cut behind the ear, and Gwen Henderson, 31, 1951 Bouchier, passenger in the other car, was treated for forehead cuts and released.

THREE CHARGES

Watson, who had left the scene of the accident allegedly to call city police, faced three charges in police court today. He pleaded guilty to careless driving, failing to remain at the scene and driving without a licence.

Court was told the accused drove east on Bay Street, through a stop sign at Cook and was in collision with the Barge car going south on Cook.

He walked away from his damaged auto "to call the police" and did not return to the scene. He was later arrested.

Watson was remanded in police custody for sentence Tuesday.

Joseph Alfred Jacques, 30, 2539 Shakespeare, was treated at Jubilee for face and hand abrasions and bruised ribs after the car he was parking on Esquimalt near Ilahai apparently hooked bumpers with a passing car driven by Frank Godwin, 427 Superior.

Jacques' car veered across the road and into a CPR boxcar

standing in E & N yards, causing moderate damage.

A city patrol wagon, rushing police to free a nine-year-old girl's hand from entanglement in a soft drink machine Sunday morning, went out of control at Douglas near Toronto and crashed into two parked cars, causing extensive damage but no injury.

Cons. John Burdny, driver of the police van, continued to Beacon Drive Inn and released Monique Petrin, 668 Beacon, from the machine. Her hand was severely bruised but not broken.

The call was received at 11:05 a.m. The police car went into a spin, crashed into a car owned by Dominion Motors, 1314 Quadra, which had been parked off the west side of Douglas, then continued into another parked car, owned by George Usher, 332 Douglas.

There was heavy damage to the first car, medium damage to the second and slight damage to the police van.

THIEVES TAKE LIQUOR IN GOLF CLUB BREAK-IN

About $100 worth of liquor and eight cartons of cigarettes were stolen from Gorge Vale golf clubhouse overnight by thieves who forced a west side door.

Entry was discovered by Esquimalt police at 2:20 a.m. today.

Six locked doors inside the premises were forced as the thieves searched for valuables. A safe in the office was broken open but it contained no money.

GRACIOUS SNAKES ALIVE

Don't Look Now But Fifi's Gone

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Keep an eye open for Fifi if you are visiting the Provincial Museum in the next few weeks.

Fifi has gone missing from her glass "house" in the museum's entrance hall, and it is thought she is hiding somewhere in the building. What is she?

Fifi is a three-foot-long snake. She's known as a Rubber Boa, although don't be fooled by the "rubber" part. She's the real thing.

Snake people insist she can hurt you naught—physically, at least—despite her length and a "waist-line" similar to the girth of a garden hose. Incidentally, these same people describe her as "stubby-tailed" but it takes an expert to recognize where the stub starts.

They think she is hiding in a dark corner of the museum. And they say that when she gets hungry she will put in an appearance. She gets hungry about once every three months.

Fifi made her getaway with two other creatures of the reptile world when someone broke a hole in the glass of the museum "pen."

FIFI QUICKER

Tony, the garter snake, and Tiny, the lizard, were returned to custody shortly after the breakout. But Fifi was quicker in finding a hide-out.

The museum people claim she will be missed by more than them. They say Fifi was a favorite of hundreds of school children who visit the museum regularly.

The brown snake, found only in southern British Columbia, would wind itself around their arms, and tickle their noses with her tongue. "She was a pet," said Claude Briggs, museum caretaker. "She taught many children that she was worthy of affection."

So keep an eye open for Fifi. And don't (shudder) be alarmed at her lean and hungry look.

Motorists Rush For Centennial Licence Plates

Officials of the provincial motor vehicles branch reported a heavy rush of customers this morning for new licence plates.

Four wickets were operating steadily at the Victoria office and one official said it was "as busy as a department store on the day before Christmas."

The new plates — green on gold — can be put on immediately, and officials believe that's the main reason for the early rush.

Until a few years ago, plates could not be put on the car until Feb. 1. The deadline for new plates is the same as previously—March 1.

MacMillan, Bloedel Top Post for Clyne

Appointment of former B.C. Supreme Court justice J. V. Clyne as chairman of the board of MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd. was announced shortly, the Times learned reliably.

Mr. Clyne resigned from the Supreme Court at the end of the year and said only that he was going into commercial activity in the province, not private law practice.

His resignation followed closely that of Gordon Sloan as Chief Justice of the B.C. Court of Appeal to become forests adviser to the provincial government.

Mr. Clyne will move into the position formerly held by B. M. Hoffmeister, who resigned as board chairman three weeks ago.

Final approval is expected to be given by the company's annual meeting this week.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Will you please give me the definition of the term "Indian summer," and what date it starts and finishes? A.H.S.

A. There are no specific dates; they vary from place to place. As close a definition as can be made is a period in the fall, usually a week or 10 days, when a cold snap has ended and summer again seems to have taken over the land. Origin was likely when Indians caught up on harvest activities neglected during the actual fall itself.

Anyone sending a question answered in this column is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times," Editor, Questions and Answers, will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

MONTE ROBERTS

Just wondering around . . .

Wonder what would happen if the Vancouver Indian who believes the centennial dollars are bad medicine would do if offered a hoghead full of them . . . wonder how many dollars would be needed to fill a hoghead . . . wonder what a hoghead is, anyhow . . .

Wonder if it's true the Victoria Cougars are the team to beat in the Western Hockey League? . . . personally, I think they are . . . at least, nearly everyone seems to be beating them . . . wonder if it's true the game's the thing and it matters not to win or lose . . . and how many home-town fans feel that way . . .

Wonder whatever became of Davey Crockett hats . . . Milton Berle . . . the New Look . . . the Victoria courthouse . . . see B.C. first . . . Canada for Canadians . . . wonder whatever will become of Elvis Presley . . . wonder where you can get a good cup of coffee . . . wonder if it's true in B.C. that nothing is sure but debt and taxes . . .

Wonder if, when columnists meet, they do so in a jeer parlor . . . wonder if there really is a law against double-parking in this city . . . or are all those trucks standing three feet outside the line of parked cars on the curb nothing but optical illusions? . . . wonder if the Fountain Circle isn't a somewhat roundabout way to solve a traffic problem? . . .

Wonder if Don Smith doesn't feel better now that he's stopped moonlighting . . . wonder if the sudden disappearance of all talk about a civic auditorium isn't a bit odd, to say the least . . . wonder when Lawrie Wallace is going to take down his Christmas decorations . . . wonder if Cec Ridout is going to Hawaii to see about getting on the Dole . . . wonder how a fire can manage to burn without Frank Briers around to supervise . . .

Wonder what the last rose of summer (in Victoria, that is) said to the first rose of winter . . . wonder why in the world anyone would wish to live anywhere in the world but Victoria . . . wonder if the weatherman will shoot THAT one down in flames before it gets into print . . .

Just wondering around . . . and ah, the wonder of it all!

WATER SKI SPECTACLE PROPOSED

An international three-day water ski meet at Beaver Lake in August is the latest spectacle proposed to broaden centennial celebrations in this area.

Victoria Aqua Ski Club president, C. L. Johnson, has written to the city council parks committee asking permission to hold the event on Beaver Lake. The lake is closed to motor boats without special permission.

Mr. Johnson said the club has opportunity to sponsor Canadian Open Water Ski championships here. In order to cover expenses, it would be necessary to charge admission to the lake shores.

Competitors would be expected from Mexico, Texas, Florida and other North American points. The proposal will be discussed by the committee, probably next week.

City Tug Escorts Limping Freighter From Race Rocks

The Island Tug and Barge tug Sudbury today towed the 10,000-ton British freighter Baron Inverclyde to Esquimalt from Royal Roads for boiler repairs after escorting the vessel here Sunday when she broke down off Race Rocks.

The Inverclyde radioed at about 3 a.m. Sunday her boilers were not working and she was drifting about five miles off Race Rocks. When Sudbury arrived, the boilers were working again on a reduced scale and the Sudbury escorted her to Royal Roads.

The Baron Inverclyde was on a trip from Vancouver to Tahiti on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Yarrows will undertake the boiler repair work, expected to take about four days.

Victoria Tenor Fails in Audition For Metropolitan

Victoria tenor Michael Rogers, 27, failed in the finals held Sunday at Seattle in Metropolitan Opera auditions.

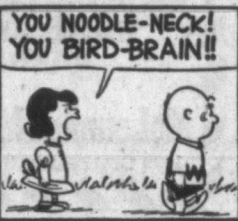

He was one of 10 singers selected from four Pacific Northwest cities to enter the final session.

Only one singer was chosen, "a very fine soprano from Portland," Mr. Rogers said today. He will next take part in auditions for the San Francisco Opera Company to be held in Spokane, Wash., near the end of January.

Another city tenor, Andras Mata, 23, of Saseenos, was not included in the successful list of 10 finalists, although he made the semifinals.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'Think Young'—Marathon Will Help You Do So

A French proverb says: "Forty is the age of youth; fifty is the youth of age."

Yet many women of 40 and 50 are so age-conscious that it damages their personalities and happiness dramatically. The persistent over-present thought that one is deteriorating rather than improving, becoming less attractive rather than more so, has a tremendous effect on health as well as appearance. Such a dreary attitude influences our entire bodily setup, from our heart beat and respiration to our glands and digestion. It even dictates the posture and mannerisms of many women.

I believe that you can literally think yourself into premature aging or prolong the youthful portion of your life almost magically if you will not think in terms of years. Without realizing it, you may have adopted the outlook and postures and mannerisms of older age because you think you are expected to "at your age."

Individuals are as different as fingerprints. To settle down into ruts of boredom simply because many women of your age do so is sad indeed. It is especially sad in view of the new information about nutrition, weight control, the effects of exercise, and psychosomatic medicine.

A woman is old at any age if she thinks of herself as old and she is young at any age if she has a youthful, uninhibited spirit and viewpoint. Most women are greatly affected by their appearance. Nothing can make such a change in their viewpoint or add such zest to life as physical self-improvement.

So, if you have been taking yourself for granted, you have been doing yourself an injustice. As most of my readers know, I offer my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon each year at this time. Some may wish to improve their complexion or posture. Whatever your problem may be, in eight weeks of regular effort you can make a big dent in it.

So, why not join the gang? My marathon booklet gives you a weight and height chart, corrective exercises for the most usual figure faults and suggestions about skin care.

If you would like to join the marathon, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

RUSS REPORTED TO HAVE SENT MAN UP IN ROCKET

TWO OTHERS HURT

Worker Killed By 12,000 Volts

One man was electrocuted at 9.30 a.m. today and two suffered burns when the cable of a mobile crane working on a construction job in Oak Bay touched a 12,000-volt high tension cable.

Victim was Sigvard Gustafson, 51, of 1221 Johnson Street, father of six young children, who was guiding the sling of the crane toward a pile of lumber when the fatal contact was made.

Helping him were John Martin, 339 Simcoe, who was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital for treatment, and Kristian Naess, 3809 Carey Road, who was treated at the hospital and sent home.

The accident occurred at 1270 Beach Drive, where A. K. Smalley, 2705 Dorset, a contractor, is building a two-storey apartment. According to reports, the men were using the mobile crane to lift lumber from the street to the top floor of the apartment.

Owned by Victoria Van and Storage Ltd., and operated by Thomas W. Cox, 3590 Saanich Road, it was parked sideways between the curb and the building. Cox escaped injury.

Police said the building is on a curve, and that poles carrying the power line are at each end of the property. As a result, the power line cuts across the curve formed by the curb.

Const. Harold Bird and Const. Charles Bates of Oak Bay police attended the accident, and took Gustafson to Royal Jubilee Hospital in the police ambulance. He was dead on arrival at the hospital. Decision on an inquest will be announced by the Oak Bay police.

The victim, a native of Sweden and resident of Canada since 1929, had lived in Victoria for the past 15 years. He was a member of Swedish and Norwegian social clubs here, and was active in the Boy Scout movement.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and of the Carpenters and Joiners Brotherhood, and gave freely of his time on charity and public service projects undertaken by the union.

Surviving are the widow, Ruth; five sons, all under 15 years, and a daughter only two months old.

U.S. Defences Out of Step Billions Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A civilian study group says American strategy and military forces are out of step with the tempo of the missile age and need big changes and billions more in money.

United States defence spending should be increased about $3,000,000,000 each year for the next several years, says a special 21-man panel of the Rockefeller Bros. Fund.

The panel says the Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman "should be in a position to Greater Victoria's first traffic fatality of 1958 occurred in View Royal Sunday night.

William Hopkins, 76, of 283 Helmcken, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 11.30 p.m., two hours after he was in collision with a light truck at the corner of Helmcken and the Old Island Highway. Colwood RCMP said driver of the truck was Mrs. Joan Edith Ridley, 3260 Metcoun.

Details of the accident are still under RCMP investigation. Mrs. Ridley apparently was travelling toward Victoria on the highway when her car was in collision with the pedestrian. It is understood he was on his way to mail a letter.

Mr. Hopkins, a former CNR repairman, came to Canada from Wales in 1913. He lived in Winnipeg prior to moving to Victoria in 1946.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Winnifred Macintosh, Victoria; one son, Leonard, New Westminster, and a sister in England.

Macmillan Pact Move Favored by Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated again today he strongly favors reopening of East-West negotiations.

Talking with reporters after a two and one-half-hour cabinet meeting, the prime minister said British Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for an East-West non-aggression pact represents a "forward-looking view."

Mr. Macmillan, he added, has shown repeatedly a desire to bring about an alleviation of world tensions.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that on the basis of past experience a non-aggression pact might not achieve everything intended but it would bring the major Western nations together in consultation with Russia. This in itself would be of "material advantage."

The prime minister said uncertainties and difficulties among individuals can be dissipated by discussion. The same could apply to nations.

Solutions would never be reached unless there was discussion.

Mr. Diefenbaker at the same time disclosed that he received a new year's greeting Dec. 31 from President Voroshilov, Communist party secretary Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin of Russia.

He did not receive it immediately because he was holidaying.

MAC'S PLAN BACKED

Russ Challenge West to Follow Cut in Forces

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced tonight a 300,000-man reduction in its armed forces in 1958 and challenged the Western powers to do likewise.

At the same time, Deputy Foreign Minister V. V. Kuznetsov told a press conference the Kremlin is considering "positively" Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for a non-aggression pact between East and West.

Kuznetsov said the reduction in Soviet military manpower will begin immediately and be completed this year.

The reduction, he added, is being made in compliance with the directives of the last Supreme Soviet parliament and the 300,000-man cut will include the army, navy and air force.

But Soviet Make No Announcement

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has launched an experimental rocket 180 miles into the atmosphere with a human aboard, reliable sources here said tonight.

The man aboard the rocket parachuted successfully to earth, these sources said.

There was no official Soviet announcement.

The successful experiment is reported to have taken place within a day or so after the New Year, the reports said.

Some time ago Soviet scientists sent up dogs to a lesser height. The dogs were released and parachuted to safety.

Russia already has launched two successful earth satellites which circled the globe in orbit.

The human venture into the upper atmosphere is not in the satellite class. The rocket did not orbit about the earth.

The Russians previously had said they hoped to launch a satellite with a human being aboard sometime in the future.

However, they have said they would not risk a human life until preliminary experiments have been conducted.

The manned rocket presumably was one of those experiments.

The fact that no formal Soviet announcement has been made in Moscow while rumors swept through the Soviet capital led to some speculation that the manned rocket experiment may not have been a total success.

Just how the Russians succeeded in getting a human being down safely from the great height was not made clear in the reports circulating in Moscow.

However, observers speculated that the man was released from the rocket in a pressurized container so equipped that he could survive at such altitudes, and so constructed that the container itself would not be destroyed.

At the right stage the man aboard presumably could parachute out in safety. Reports here have placed his return to earth as somewhere in the Soviet Union.

The Russians first announced they had fired a successful intercontinental ballistic missile last August.

On Oct. 4 they launched Sputnik No. 1, a 184-pound globe which went spinning round the earth emitting radio signals.

Then Nov. 3 the second satellite was launched this time with a dog on board. The dog has long since died.

HILLARY, FUCHS SQUABBLE

Briton Refuses To Abandon Trip

LONDON (Reuters)—British explorer Vivian Fuchs today curtly rejected a suggestion from Sir Edmund Hillary that he give up his struggle to reach the South Pole now.

Dr. Fuchs, attempting the first successful land crossing of the Antarctic continent, also turned down an offer by Hillary to join the Fuchs party at a point 700 miles from the coast.

Hillary suggested Fuchs abandon attempts to complete the crossing now because he feels deteriorating weather will make the expedition risky. But Fuchs said his party will take its chances and "we will find our own way out."

Marshal of the RAF Sir John Slessor, chairman of the enterprise, has cabled Dr. Fuchs telling him: "We have full confidence in you and your judgement as leader of the expedition."

The original plan for the expedition—worked out more than a year ago—was for Dr. Fuchs and his party of explorers to make the first complete land crossing of the white continent.

Hillary, setting off from the other side, was to establish Depot 700—700 miles from the coast—and wait there until Fuchs reached him.

Instead, Hillary made a dash to the South Pole from Depot 700 and now has flown back to his original coastal starting point, leaving his vehicles behind.

He disclosed today that because of worsening weather he urged Fuchs—who is still more than 300 miles from the South Pole—to abandon the crossing once he reached the pole and resume it in the next summer season, toward the end of this year.

The message from Fuchs received at expedition headquarters here today read:

"Have received message from Hillary urging me to abandon journey at pole and return here next season to continue work."

"His grounds are deterioration of weather late in season."

"I am aware of this possibility which must be accepted."

"Have informed him that there is no question of abandonment and return of party following season impracticable."

Hanna Fined For Intoxication, Admits 'Failure'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Christian George Hanna, Canada's most publicized immigrant in recent years, made another public appearance today when he appeared in court on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place early Sunday.

Hanna, 24, pleaded guilty to the charge, which resulted from a noisy party here, and was fined $10 or five days imprisonment.

An unidentified woman paid his fine.

Hanna was arrested on a similar charge here last summer but skipped his bail.

While awaiting hearing of his charge Sunday, Hanna wrote a letter to Acting Immigration Minister Davie Fulton apologizing for his failure to succeed in Canada.

Defence Budget Okayed After More Criticism

(From Times News Services)

Canada's $1,723,000,000 defence budget for the current fiscal year ending next March 31 has been approved by the Commons.

However, approval came Saturday only after another round of criticisms directed against what Lester B. Pearson described as "a very shaky basis" for the establishment of NORAD.

NORAD is the joint North American Air Defence Command, set up at Colorado Springs, Colo., six months ago with an American commander and a Canadian deputy.

Mr. Pearson, former Liberal external affairs minister, criticized the fact that this command, unlike other commands within NATO, was established without a prior formal agreement being negotiated between Canada and the United States. The formal agreement, necessary to maintain civilian government authority over the military, was needed to set out NORAD's operational principles and its relationship with the Canadian and U.S. governments.

He said the oral agreements between Canada and the U.S. for the establishment of NORAD were "a very shaky basis" on which an American commander could order Canadian planes in Canada into action.

Exchange of Draft Agreements

Defence Minister Pearkes replied that he too believes the civilian authority must be maintained over the military. There had been an exchange of draft agreements, based on oral agreements, and as soon as they had been approved by the two governments, Canada would submit the formal text for parliamentary approval.

He said that, in effect, political authority is established by the fact that the chiefs of staff of both countries must account to government ministers.

Mr. Pearkes said NORAD makes possible a defence of North America that would not have been possible otherwise. There would be no time to call Parliament for approval to send up defenders when enemy planes were over Canadian territory.

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, said no one quarrels with the need for joint defence of Canada and the U.S.

But it was only proper that it be established on the basis of political agreement. Civilian authority over the military must be maintained.

During the defence debate, Mr. Pearkes made these other points:

1. The militia's new civil defence role does not mean it will take over civil defence from provincial and municipal authorities, but would better prepare it as "an aid to the civil power."

2. The RCAF is considering the advisability of replacing its old Canso aircraft for search and rescue operations, but no decision has been reached.

3. The $1,100,000 available for defence research grants in universities this year will not be reduced next fiscal year.

The federal government spent $89,640,000 up to Oct. 31 on development of the CF-105 supersonic jet interceptor and is committed to support its development only until next Oct. 1, Defence Minister Pearkes said Saturday.

He said the total cost of the project, undertaken by Avro Aircraft Ltd., will depend on "the number of aircraft, if any, which are ordered."

Replying to CCF questioners, Mr. Pearkes said the delta-winged interceptor is designed to meet high-altitude manned bombers. Russia had a considerable number of such bombers, and while that condition existed it was necessary to have aircraft capable of meeting them.

Gen. Gavin Spurs Pentagon Shakeup

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spectacular one-man revolt by Lieut.-Gen. James M. Gavin has spurred demands for a shakeup in the United States military high command.

Gavin, chief of the army's research and development program, told a reporter he is sticking by his announced intention to retire from the army March 31.

"I won't compromise my principle and I won't go along with the Pentagon system," Gavin said.

Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.) said Gavin's stand emphasizes a need for Congress to consider overhauling the present military setup.

Gavin said Saturday night that "I haven't been able to get much done, the system being what it is." Without elaborating on this, he said he is "not doing any good" inside the army "so I'll take a cut at it on the outside."

Several subcommittee members asked that the group look into reports that Gavin was threatened with transfer to some obscure post unless he changed some of his views on the missiles program.

"He does not wish to accompany us from pole but offers to join us at Depot 700. He states his agreement with his mechanic's views that continuation of journey late in the season is unjustifiable risk."

"I do not agree but have informed him that I do not feel able to ask him to join us at Depot 700 to use his local knowledge, Fuchs."

Sessors' message to Fuchs, sent on behalf of the London committee of management of the expedition, read: "Committee have considered your telegram and Hillary's. We have full confidence in you and your judgment as leader of the expedition."

"We support your decision and any other you may make."

"Best wishes and congratulations on present progress."

The extent of the disagreement between the two explorers is shown by the text of Hillary's telegram to London headquarters suggesting that Fuchs abandon his attempt.

SAVE FACE

He told the London organizers: "Your instructions are the only thing that can enable Fuchs to save face and adopt a modified plan."

The telegram said Fuchs had asked that one of Hillary's mechanics stay at the south pole to accompany him to Scott Base—the New Zealand headquarters on the Antarctic coast.

It added: "Neither of my men, who have done an outstanding job, is prepared to take on this job which they regard as extremely foolhardy at this time of the year."

He said: "Fuchs does not realize that his delayed progress is causing considerable concern not only to ourselves but also to the Americans."

"They accept the fact it will be their job, whether they are asked or not, to initiate rescue action and that therefore both naval and air forces will be tied up here awaiting Fuchs' safe arrival."

3 Juveniles Held in Ottawa Rash of Fires

OTTAWA (CP)—Two brothers and their sister—all juveniles—today were charged by police with setting 10 fires in east-central Ottawa during a 20-hour period Sunday and a school fire Dec. 22.

The children, ranging in age between nine and 12, were arrested today following an intensive police and fire department investigation of the series of fires.

The three will appear in juvenile court later this week, police said.

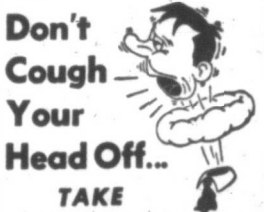

Police began a search for school-age children when partly-burned schoolbooks and paper were found under the verandah of an apartment house where fire was discovered Sunday.

The three will be held in custody until their court appearance.

Heavier damage was suffered at Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church on Laurier Avenue East at Cumberland Street. Two fires were found 40 feet apart near entrances to the church basement. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Tories Still Study House Recess During Liberal Leadership Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today no arrangement has been made yet for recessing the Commons for all or part of the Jan. 14-16 sessions of the national Liberal leadership convention here.

Earlier, a spokesman at Liberal headquarters had said the House would stand adjourned Wednesday night, Jan. 15, and all day Thursday, Jan. 16—leadership balloting day.

Works Minister Howard Green, government floor leader in the Commons, also denied there has been any arrangement made.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Commons will be notified when consideration has been given to the question.

One high-placed government informant said it might seem reasonable that the House take Wednesday night and Thursday afternoon off.

Senate plans were not known. Senator J. T. Haig, government leader, was not in the capital. All Liberal members of both Houses are voting delegates at the convention.

Moon, Sun Battle Produces Spectacle

A schizophrenic sky Saturday was the setting for a 15-minute battle between moon and sun over Victoria.

Starting at 4:30 p.m. Victorians who were out and about saw a silvery full moon rise over Mount Baker as the sun sank below the Sooke hills in a brilliant multi-hued departure.

Golfers, playing the links at Oak Bay, had one of the best ringside seats for the double spectacle as they finished their games by simultaneous moonlight and sunlight.

The explanation? "It was nothing unusual," said Dr. R. M. Petrie of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. "The full moon during December and January is very high in the sky so that it rises before the sun sets."

"It follows, in winter, the same path north of the equator that the sun takes in July."

The next performance should be staged here towards the end of this month when the moon goes into its full phase again.

As for the brilliant sunset, weatherman Bill Mackie credited high-floating cirrus clouds that were present in the west.

U.S. Readies Big Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—A brawny Atlas intercontinental missile, mightiest so far prepared by the United States in reply to Russian rocket threats, was poised again today for firing some time this week.

Harsh winds lashing the cape and its great steel missile towers were expected to continue at least another day, however, and could delay the first test launchings of the new year.

Best guess for triggering of the blunt-nosed 90-foot Atlas was Wednesday, the day after Congress reconvenes to consider the staggering sums needed for bolstering the nation's defences—in particular the guided missile development program.

Protection

...at your fingertips

Safety in the automobile is optional at no extra cost. No mechanical safety device can replace the protection of careful driving.

Last year, traffic accidents claimed the lives of more Canadians than ever before. Someone was injured every 8 minutes. A car was damaged every 48 seconds. Automobile insurance claims rose to more than $150,000,000.

One result of this is higher automobile insurance rates—because what is paid out in claims must be brought in by premiums. But even more important is the fact that you hold your life, and the lives of others, in your hands when you get behind the wheel of a car.

Safety pays dividends... saves lives, helps to lower your insurance costs. Be Careful.

SIX-GOAL SPREE

One-Man Show By Ackinclose

Bill Ackinclose is at it again. Leading scorer in the Victoria and District Football League, the Canadian Scottish centre forward, who has enjoyed scoring spurges of seven and six goals earlier this season, went on another spree at Topaz Avenue Sunday.

Held scoreless in his last outing, Ackinclose broke loose for six tallies to make 12 goals in his last three games as the Scots swamped Punjab United, 9-1, and climbed into a second-place deadlock with Gorge Hotel and Heaneys.

Gorge, which has won both its games in the second half of the league schedule, received a bye due to Butler Brothers' withdrawal from the loop, while Heaneys evened their record at 2-2 by edging Canadian Hungarians, 4-3, in a hard-fought match before almost 500 fans at Heywood Avenue.

Tillicums, the first-half champions, made their initial start on the second portion of the schedule at Central Park Sunday and had some anxious moments before walking off with a 2-1 triumph over Victoria Kickers.

Saturday, Brodies Bakery continued its impressive march—and moved four points out in front with its fourth successive victory of the second half—a 3-1 win over Esquimalt at Royal Athletic Park.

Ackinclose kept the Scots out in front during the opening half at Heywood, firing three goals while George Brown was collecting Punjab's lone marker.

After the intermission, the quick-moving centre made his precision kicking pay off for three more goals, to raise his season's total to 35, and Ernie Eastlake, Frank Greely and Neil Standley each connected once to complete the rout.

Heaneys and Hungarians staged a fast, hard-checking game for the Heywood Avenue fans and Heaneys provided some extra thrills as they came from behind with two picture goals in the second half.

Joseph Knavar and Joe Clarkson gave the Hungarians a 2-0 lead before Bill Burley pulled Heaneys even with two quick tallies. Then Andor Csabi broke through to boost Hungarians into a 3-2 lead at the intermission.

Right-half Ron Pedersen put the finishing touches on a clever passing attack to square the count and Tom Rimmer fired the winning marker, placing a booming 20-yarder into a top corner midway in the second session.

Erratic shooting and some brilliant goalkeeping by Al Davies thwarted Kickers' bid to upset Tillicums. Otto Petrovansky, of Kickers, and Morris Bunyan, traded goals before Charlie Constable, league-leading scorer last season, drilled the winning shot just before the half-time break.

DAVIES ALERT
Sparked by Antol Major, Kickers pressed through much of the second session, but poor shooting, particularly by Dick Nellesstijn, and alert work by Davies, who was caught out of position on Petrovansky's goal, kept them off the scoreboard.

Brodies turned in a fine football display Saturday, but had to work all the way to down the determined Dockyarders.

Henry Vanderhorst scored the only goal of the opening half and Leroy Bond made it 2-0 early in the second. George Paul scored on a penalty kick to slice the margin, but Vanderhorst iced the decision with his second goal five minutes from time.

League president Eddie Viggers announced this morning that Sapperton Athletic Club, of the Vancouver and District Football League, will meet a Victoria all-star side at Royal Athletic Park, next Saturday.

TIME OUT! JEFF KEATE

"Do you mind, Mr. Snead? ... Smile!"

TIPTON TOWN'S SUCCESS DRIVING BOOKIES CRAZY

TIPTON, England (Reuters)—Punters in this town are so successful that three big bookmaking firms will not send them any more betting forms for soccer.

Many in this town of 37,000 wage only small amounts in the legal soccer pools. But so many of them have enjoyed modest successes that the bookies are going crazy—and broke!

One bookmaker paid out £100,000 to the town in eight weeks. Another had to find £100,000 for Tipton folk last week alone.

"Tipton is a graveyard," moaned one bookie. "The punters know their home matches inside out. They know everything about every player in every team for miles around, and when the weather's right they back heavily and clean up."

Another bookie said: "It's the first time I've ever heard of a whole town being boycotted."

Nearly every pub has a "syndicate" and they specialise in forecasting eight results where they get odds of between 12 to 1 and 18 to 1.

"You might say it brings us each an average of 30-odd bob a week—which is very handy beer money," one bettor said today.

And the pub-keeper commented: "It's nice for the punters to know they've beaten the book, but some of my customers say they don't know what to do with their time—or money—now."

Oak Bay Rally Starts Too Late
Late rallies are almost always certain to provide a thrilling finish to any sports event. Sometimes, however, they come too late.

A case in point was Saturday's 14-8 conquest of Oak Bay Wanderers by the Kitsilano Kats from Vancouver in an exhibition rugby match at Windsor Park.

Hard-running backs proved the secret to Kats' attack as they built up a 14-point lead while holding Wanderers scoreless until 10 minutes before the final whistle.

The only first-half score came on a try by Pete Von Harten.

ATHLETICS Clip Thunderbirds
Paced by playing coach Elmer Spidel, Alberni's improving Athletics evened their season's record against UBC by nipping the Thunderbirds, in a 52-50 senior A men's basketball thriller at Alberni Saturday night.

The As had dropped 62-55 and 73-55 decisions to the Birds earlier in the season before romping to a 62-46 victory Friday.

Spidel tossed in 14 points Saturday and guard Doug Brinham added 11 points for the Athletics.

Big Four Shelves Interlocking Plan
TORONTO (CP)—Television revenue, which has proved a lifesaver to Big Four football teams striving against soaring costs, probably will be the factor that will push the East and West into an interlocking schedule.

The East's Big Four league Saturday tackled the long-discussed idea again and decided it isn't feasible for this year at least.

Principal objection is the high travelling costs of an interlocking schedule. However, the expansion of TV into the West increases the importance of such games to a sponsor and TV rights could possibly give the teams enough revenue to make East-West games profitable.

The Big Four will be free to give the idea more serious consideration after this season. The league's TV contract, which gives each club $80,000 yearly, expires at the end of the 1958 season and the league likely will discuss with the Western Interprovincial Football Union proposals to offer telecasts of interlocking games at a higher price.

BREAK WITH CRU?
The two big pro leagues will be able to pave the way for this plan if they stick to their present plans to break away from the Canadian Rugby Union—long the ruling body of the game in this country—and form a new body comprising their own officials. The Big Four, at a special league meeting Saturday, reaffirmed its intention to take such action if the WIFU is still willing.

The final decision will be made in Winnipeg Jan. 19 at a meeting of the Canadian Football Council, a group established two years ago with representatives from the nine pro teams to handle common problems. The CFC will gather after the Big Four and WIFU hold their annual meetings the two previous days.

Both leagues agreed tentatively last November to set up their own organization for pro football and Saturday the Big Four decided to propose at the CFC meeting that Syd Halter, of Winnipeg, WIFU commissioner, be appointed commissioner of the new setup with an assistant under his jurisdiction to supervise Big Four operations.

Other major points dealt with at the meeting included imports and the 1958 schedule. The Big Four will recommend to the West that to cut costs the import limit be set at 13 after each team's third game and only 12 play in a game. Last season the teams could carry as many imports as they wanted while playing only 12.

This season the schedule, with each team playing 14 games, will open Tuesday, August 19, with Hamilton at Montreal in a twilight game and Toronto at Ottawa in a night encounter.

Speedy Jack Maxwell hit pay dirt for the touring team early in the second frame with Bruce McEachern making good the conversion. Captain George Sainas scored the visitors' final points on a penalty kick in what appeared a runaway win for Kitsilano.

Fullback Dick Ellis brought Oak Bay to life in the dying minutes of the contest, however, when he drove home a penalty kick to be followed by scrum-half Gary Webster's try. Ellis made good the convert.

In other exhibition action, at Carnarvon Park, JBAA Firsts downed JBAA Seconds, 11-3. Harry Turner scored a pair and Ken Higgs one try for the winners while Rick McVie tallied for the losers.

Higgs' try was converted by kicking specialist Doug Brown.

ACROSS B.C.

(From CP Dispatches)

HORSESHOE BAY.—About 12 persons were left behind at the Pacific Great Eastern Railway stop here Sunday when they were informed by a conductor that the train to northern points was full.

The seven-car train is reported to have slowed as it neared the stop and a conductor told waiting would-be passengers the train was full. The report said the train then picked up speed and left Horseshoe Bay for northern points without stopping.

In Vancouver, PGE general manager J. S. Broadbent said another car was not available to accommodate persons at Horseshoe Bay. He said officials at Prince George will conduct an investigation into reports of the train not stopping at Horseshoe Bay.

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index at the start of December declined one-fifth of a point to 123.1 from 123.3 a month earlier, the bureau of statistics said today.

The drop in the index—which is based on 1949 prices equalling 100—was the second consecutive monthly decline in 1957. At the start of November, the index eased to 123.3 from a record 123.4 the previous month in the first drop in the index last year.

The decrease at the start of December resulted from lower food prices. The food sub-index declined 1.4 per cent to 118.8 from 120.2, more than offsetting increase in other groups.

The index for average wages and salaries at Oct. 1—the latest figure available—was 160.3, on the basis of 1949 equalling 100. This compares with 148 at Jan. 1, 1957, and with the following average figures for the preceding years: 1956, 149.4; 1955, 141.7; 1954, 137.1; 1953, 133.4; 1952, 126.0; 1951, 115.5; 1950, 104.4; 1949, 100.

The index figure of 123.1 at the start of December represents an increase of 2.7 points compared with the same period in 1956. The decrease in the index between the start of October and the start of December amounted to 2.4 per cent.

MACMILLAN

In London, the foreign office said today that Prime Minister Macmillan's suggested non-aggression pact with Russia was not intended as an isolated offer but as a "complement" to wider international agreements.

This statement was offered as an interpretation rather than as a correction of the prime minister's suggestion in a broadcast Saturday that Britain would be ready to seek a non-aggression pact with the Soviet Union in the interest of easing international tensions.

World reaction to Macmillan's suggestion for an East-West non-aggression pact remained cautious. Several western countries voiced general support but did not commit themselves strongly to the suggestion. Others, notably the United States, were cool.

The U.S. issued an official "no comment" statement. Two years ago, however, Russia suggested to the U.S. a similar pact and the U.S. rejected it.

India's Prime Minister Nehru, who has been seeking such a move for a long time, greeted it with approval.

At Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said he had received a good impression of Macmillan's idea. But a later report said the West German government has decided to go more slowly in view of the lack of U.S. support.

French officials said there would be no official comment until the suggestion has been discussed in the NATO permanent council.

7 Dead in Wreckage

NEVADA CITY, Calif. (AP)—Wreckage of an excursion plane which vanished Dec. 15 on a flight from Reno to San Francisco was found in the middle fork of the Yuba River near here Sunday with all seven occupants dead.

1,800 Flee Texas Storm, Rains Boost Flood Threat

DALLAS (AP)—A surge of about 130 miles up the Gulf of Mexico coast. The snows which stranded motorists fell from the Marfa area in Texas' Big Bend north for 300 miles or so into the Plainview area in the south plains, and on into New Mexico. The turbulent weather sent waves crashing into Padre Island, a long, low island that runs for 120 miles along the Texas coast. Eight persons were stranded overnight on the island. Navy helicopters evacuated them from Padre today.

Worst hit from floods were the lower Rio Grande valley at the southern tip of Texas and areas around Corpus Christie.

U.S. Admiral Spurned On Atom Sub Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rear Admiral Hyman G. Rickover told the Senate preparedness subcommittee today the U.S. Navy's high command rejected a recommendation from him two years ago for construction of a missile-firing atomic submarine.

And, Rickover said, he is "very much worried that it is almost too late to match the achievements of the Soviet Union" in the general missile field. Russia is reported to have missile-firing subs.

Rickover, who guided the development of atomic undersea craft, said he had not proposed originally that nuclear submarines be equipped to fire ballistic missiles.

But two years ago, he said, he became convinced that such a project would be feasible and recommended it be started. Previously, Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Wash.), a member of the Senate armed services committee, told reporters the United States hasn't got any missile-firing submarines under construction now.

Safe, $500 Stolen

NANAIMO—A safe containing $500 in cash and cheques was stolen Saturday night or early Sunday from Sweet Sixteen Ltd., ladies' wear shop at 45 Commercial Street.

Theft was reported to police Sunday afternoon.

It was the latest in a series of safe thefts on Vancouver Island during the fall and winter. Others were at Sidney, Nanaimo and Campbell River.
